"In the Beginning ..."

Our place in the Millenium and Beyond

Volume 90

"Home, sweet home" Our part of the millennium began in 1859. The original high school, a three story wooden structure, consisted of 75 pupils, taught by two teachers, under Principal Beal.

"Before the parking problem." Only bikes with black "N" stickers were allowed to park in the first lot.

"When men ruled the school." Even the cheerleaders we run by males, as shown by the yell kings with their migh megaphones in 1959.

-Old School Cheers from Orange Book 1941

In the beginning ...where we were... Our part of the millennium

"Dumbells, hats, and an extremely dated dress code." The 1889 girls' calisthenics team probably didn't move too far in those long skirts.

"Is it really you?" Dan Murnane and Jamie Northrup look-alikes, front row center, led an early 1940's ski team.

Ruth Watson, class of '41, complained about loud boys knocking her and her books down in the tunnels that connected the three buildings in old Newton High School. Doc Jones recalls the "Blue Grotto", a teachers' smoking lounge, where teachers could relax and be themselves. The tunnels were never filled in and now reside under the first parking lot (No shovels please!).

"Whoa, Dobbin'! Giddy-up Brownie!" These cries were familiar to the enthusiastic members of the 1937 cavalary club, whose activities included an occasional polo match.

"Social progress in the 1950's." The rifle team accepted its first female member in 1959. The club, with 100 members, was one of the most popular at Newton High.

"Wimpy's heaven on earth." We have tacos. We have pizza. But we've never had hamburgers for a quarter!

"I'm sure that each one of you has a story that I don't know." — Cecilia Duran

"It's not cool to separate people from being a part of Newton North for being who they are, whoever that is." - GSA

"If we all speak up, no one can ignore us." - Leonard Zakim

In the Beginning... Where We Are

Problems exposed in the Spring... on the threshold of change

Newton North has always been known for its diversity. Last year that diversity brought us to a standstill in the aftermath of the student shooting deaths at Columbine High School, Littleton, Colorado. These deaths, attributed to racial and group hatred, alerted us to problems in our own school community. Our school suffered from hate graffiti and a bomb threat which led to anger, fear, and accusations amongst the school's different racial and ethnic groups. Feeling frightened and unsafe, several students approached then-principal, V. James Marini, proposing an all school assembly as a means to express their frustration and fear. Over 3,000 students, parents, and faculty lined the bleachers of Dickinson Field. The students who spoke represented several different groups: Asians, Hispanics, Blacks, representatives from the Gay-Straight Alliance, EDCO, members of our athletic community and various religious groups. Their views of everyday life at North had taken a clearer focus and needed to be aired through public forum. They then went on to express their hopes for change in the future. Marini made the point that this immediate response to students' needs was "not a one shot deal" but "a life-long commitment."

"This is a New Beginning," Marini said, at the first all-school assembly in over twenty years. In the beginning, a problem has to be identified before it can be solved. We have taken the first step. As the new millennium approaches, only time will tell if we can positively effect a solution.

"We are here to affirm that our sense of community must be strong."
- Marini

"Who we are is not defined by who we hang out with, but by the way we choose to express our individuality." - Yvonne Law and Debbie Steingesser

"I fear that we have become intimidated and ignorant of each other. I may not be speaking on behalf of the Deaf students, but I sure feel isolated hanging in the yellow area." - Donald Slate

"Students of our school should be the main target of this integration idea. Give them a way to integrate [naturally] and most of them will follow...class trips, field days. and school events bring the school closer together." -Lauren Gallagher

Leah Dion, Stephanie Cotter, Lauren Gallagher, and Nicole Quinn have Lake pride.

The All-School Assembly created an understanding between the various groups and cliques of the school. As we enter the new millennium, we hope that understanding will continue to connect all the different kinds of students at our school.

Still, the events in the early part of the this year have proven that the Assembly did not fully succeed. In October, people who approached the front doors of the school were greeted by yellow caution tape, as the windows above had been shattered. Soon after, Acting Principal Jennifer Huntington interrupted classes to address a piece of racist graffiti, while other teachers have had to clean obscenities off of walls near their rooms. These incidents show that our school has yet to become a community in which everyone feels safe to learn. Indeed, many feel that the problems students described so well in the Assembly may simply have been forgotten.

Several students and teachers have not forgotten, however, and have made efforts to maintain the awareness and openness which began last Spring. Students Debbie Steingesser and Cecilia Duran have attempted to establish a forum in which students and faculty can address their concerns. The students in Leadership 2000, along with Mrs. Huntington, have also made themselves available for any questions or proposals regarding the Newton North community. Certain classes, such as the pilot program in History, Pop Culture and Law & Society, bring together students from a diverse set of backgrounds, and those students give each other a broader classroom experience. If other students and classes show as much eagerness to bring the school together as these groups have, the beginning of the next millennium will be a promising opportunity for us to learn not only from school but, more importantly, from each other.

Cecilia Duran looks over the proofs and edits this very page.

Julian Garberson feels he has become more approachable after the all school assembly.

"One of my main points is that even though we have multicultural classes, we don't use our natural resources -- the students who come from those countries." -Cecilia Duran

"Foreign students need extra help to solve some of their troubles. If the school would attach importance to this point, I think the school [would] get better in the future."

-Joyce Li

"Now we have clubs (that can help)...The Asian Culture Club is a place where anyone can join and learn about Asian cultures. All kinds of people can try to understand each other." -Jessica Chiang Joyce Li and Jessica Chiang are a part of a growing population of ESL students here at North.

Richelle Smith, Rachel Jodrey, Tara Harrison, Jackie Lee and Michel Van Rader are optimistic about the future of North.

"I think integration is very possible here at Newton North....it already exists to a certain extent." -Michel Van Rader

"I don't think much has changed -- the graffiti in the bathrooms, the segregation of kids into different areas in school and the breaking of the window, it all seems like usual." -Brandon Cooley

"There will be more Special Ed students after me, and I feel it neccessary to advocate for others beside myself." -Julian Garberson

"It is urealistic to say that kids from green are going to move to the steps. However, it is important that regardless of where you sit that no one is intimidated to walk past your group of friends and that respect is shown to everyone by everyone." -Jackie Lee

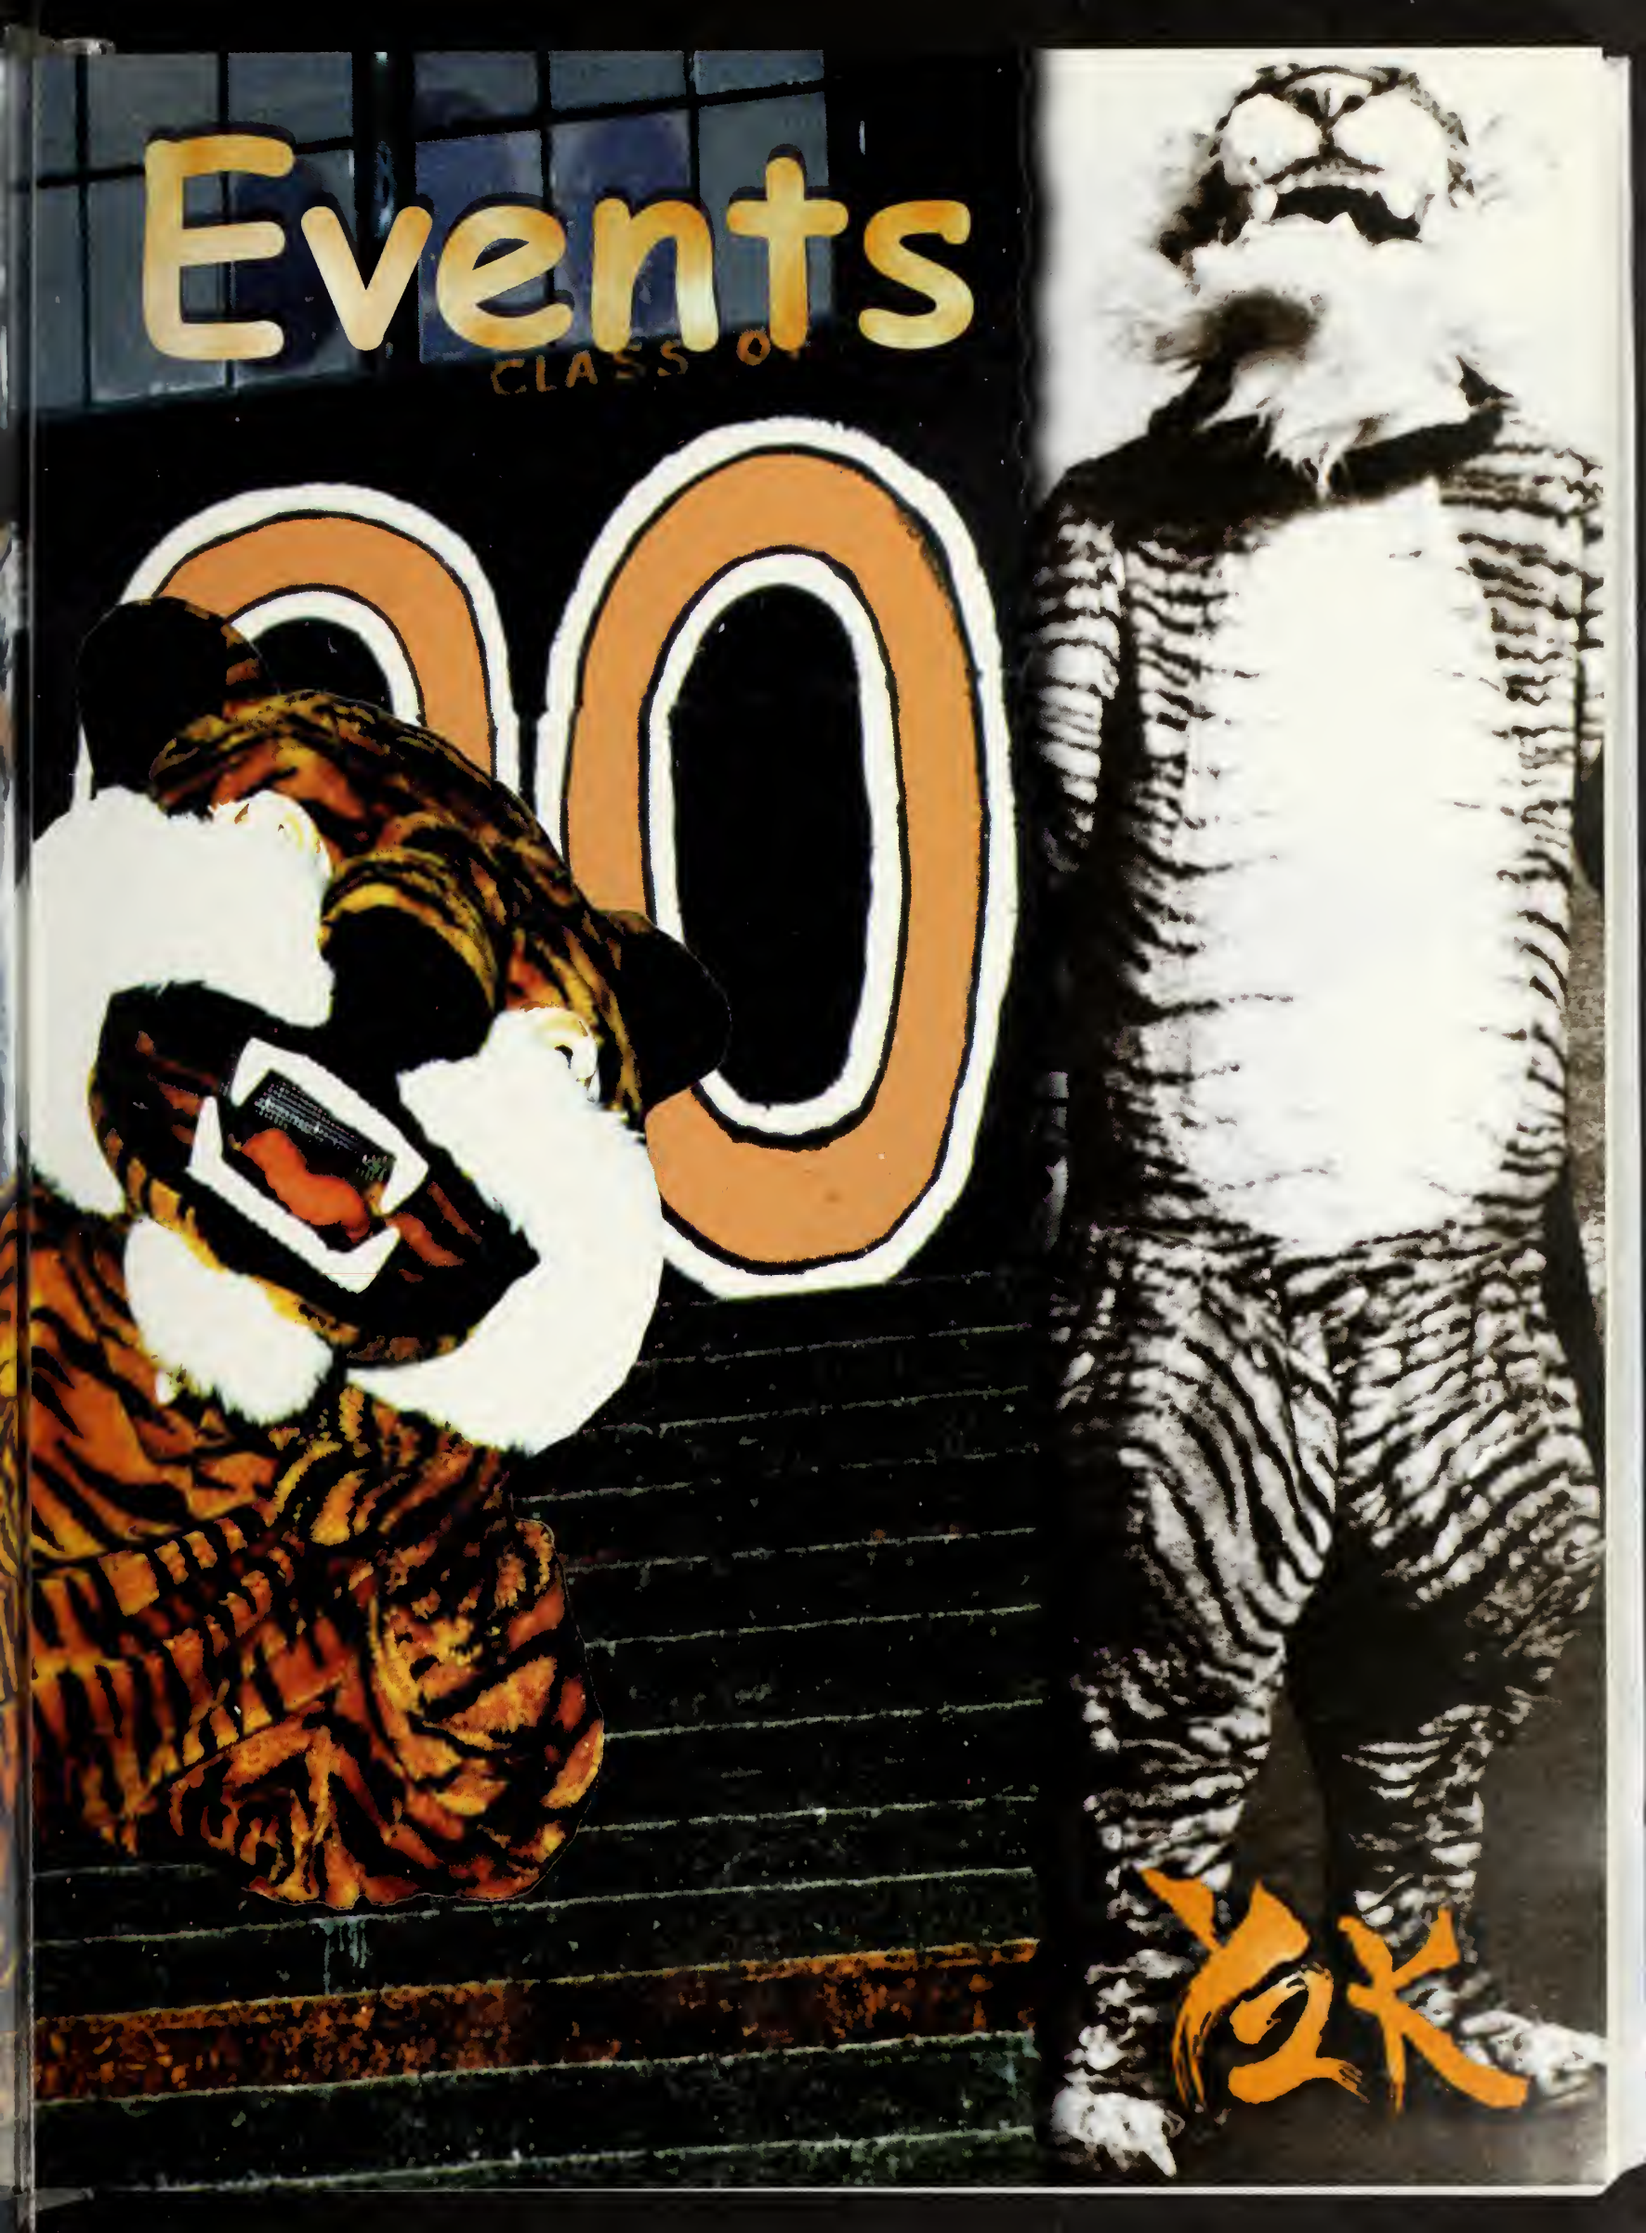

Kevin Bohlin, Kai Ravelson, Donald Slate, Jill Hatcher, Lindsay Feuer, and Bradley Miller pose in front of their new hangout in dark green.

"Our moving to dark green broke a tradition that deaf kids were excluded and only stayed in the yellow area. It showed that deaf kids wanted to become more integrated with the rest of the community." -Donald Slate

Out with the old

Parting is such sweet sorrow when it comes to saying good-bye to such great administrators. When we graduated the seniors, we also said farewell to Dr. Marini and Mrs. Stein.

"The prom is our bag, baby!" Newton North's own International Man of Mystery, "Austin 'Danger' Powers" (Yonathan Nuta) flaunts his mojo alongside the groovy "Vanessa Kensington" (Carrie Robertson).

Night Fever is contagious for Melissa Decew, who discos to the beat of a different tune.

"Shhh...Don't tell anyone, but the ace of spades is in the pizza," confesses Jordana Goren at Celebration '99.

Pomp and Circumstance rang out at graduation, played by Claire McGloughlin, Stephanie Wong, Sara Chudy, Karen Shilo, Catherine Drislane, and (back row) Liz Magruder and Jenny Knipe.

Peers Helping Peers - Lauren Waisbren and Zoe Rosenbaum lead the way for the incoming class of 2003.

In the NEW

SPRING 1999... Bidding a tearful good-bye to the class of '99, students regrouped, juniors quickly claiming their spots on Main Street. The Prom, Celebration '99 (Castle in the Clouds) and graduation flew by and hard as it was to believe, we were set for a New Beginning.

Step-Up Day last spring brought in the largest Freshman class ever. Justine Tennant, a Newton North Guidance Aid, reminisced about her Step-Up Day experience four years ago: "I remember being nervous to go to the 'big jail high school.' Last spring, as I led the incoming Freshman through the halls,I thought they looked so timid."

Ashley Taylor was one of those timid souls. "When we tried to find our room, we got lost. Then when we tried to get back to Main Street--lost again. It was so scary." Spring brought a taste of a new beginning, as the seniors moved on and the freshman moved in.

"We have arrived- via the yellow stretch limo," says freshmen Joely Merriman, Liz Schuller, and Julia Lowd as they step off the bus.

"I don't think we're in Day any more!" stammers Ciaran O' Donovan to Dan Nir and David Orian who are overwhelmed by the sheer magnitude of Main Street.

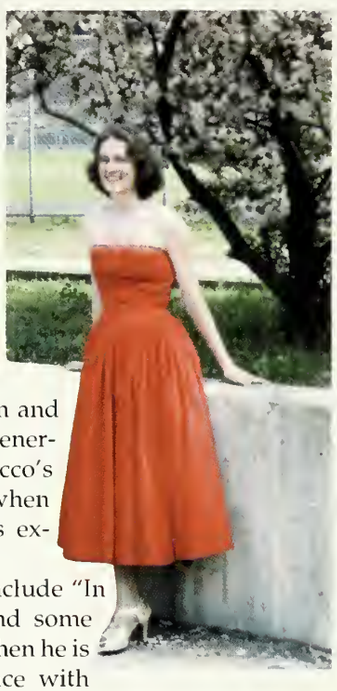

Bad to the Bone. MacDougall's two daughters used to call him down to the stage at the start of the performance. This family proves that coolness is hereditary.

Carrying the Legacy. Hey, is that the graphic art teacher Mr. Tom Donellen on the right? Aw jeez, I think it is!

ROCCO ROCKS

"A good Rocco dancer is one who is having fun!"

Rocco's Annual Rock'N'Roll Revue has been performed for twenty-six years, this past show marking the final performance. "The success of Rocco was in an upswing which is a good note to end on," said long-time director and star of the show Allan MacDougall. MacDougall, whose confirmation name is actually Rocco (after a great Uncle who was confirmed in the Church of San Rocco), has done the show year after year because of the enthusiasm and excitement that the music and dancing generates in the students and audience. Rocco's popularity peaked in the early 1980's when tickets were scalped and the show was expanded to three performances.

Some of the traditional oldies songs include "In the Still of the Night" and "Shout", and some established scenes are Rocco's opening when he is carried out on shoulders, and the dance with Celeste, his wife JoEllen Hillyer. "The dress goes back to when I was sixteen," explained Hillyer. Another tradition that most of the audience does not know is the origin of Rocco's dedication of "In the Still of the Night" to Mrs. Devine. "In the early days of Rocco it was difficult to find a place to practice, so the mother of drummer Eddie Devine opened her house to the cast," MacDougall explained, "and this was a thank-you."

"Rocco will never leave," said MacDougall. Instead, he will be-present in other sixties shows and variety shows. "My favorite part is watching the kids working on their outfits." And one of the kids' favorite aspects may be seeing MacDougall in his gear: ski gloves, prescription shades, and a leather hat ordered out of a biker catalogue.

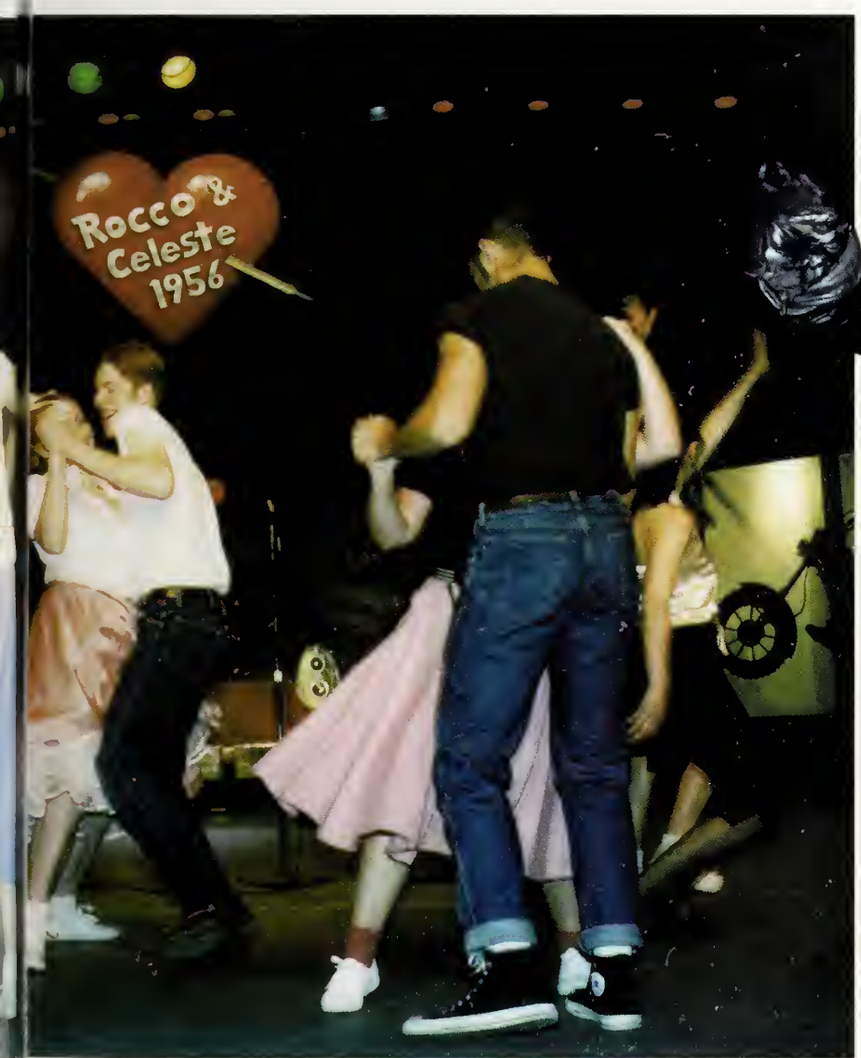

Rocking around the clock. Rocco dancers practice long and hard to perfect the choreographed swing moves of the fifties.

Lauren Waisbren smiles with that 50's spirit backstage as she prepares to hula-up-a storm.

Eric Rosenberg by day...lounge singer by night, chillin' by the piano with Dana Ross & Daren Simpkin.

COLUMBINE: Close to home

Newton Students Respond to Tragedy

Lighting the way. Gaelan Gowdy-Chase and Ashley Abelson-James pay their respects by adding their candles to the Columbine memorial.

Two streams of students began their silent march from opposite sides of the city. Newton North and Newton South made their way towards Newton Centre, a middle ground, and overcame their rivalries to join in mourning the students of Columbine High School. Said Richard Huddleston, "It was reassuring to see students of different groups brought together to reflect on an issue so crucial to their state of mind."

As students and adults shared their poems and stories, comparing their own safe school community with that of Columbine, it became apparent that both Newton schools were more alike than different. A frightening thought snuck into the back of everyone's mind: "that could have been us." However, there was a more hopeful side to the rainy evening, pointed out Becky Gluskin: "Newton students demonstrated that although we have many differences, this vigil was one way that we could unite."

Leadership 2000 march marshals gather around Columbine's memorial "C".

Supporting Columbine. Sophomores Ariel Samuelson and Jessica Pfeiffer add their candles to the "C".

"Reflection." Vicki Metzger adds a message of hope and healing.

A TIME to REFLECT

Newton North Students will never forget April of '99. The Columbine shootings were a shock that affected high school students across the country, especially in Newton. "It scared me and made me realize it could happen anywhere." said Derek Mandatori.

The Leadership 2000 class felt that North should show their support to the mourning students of Columbine by making a banner. The banner was placed on Main Street for several days so that anyone could sign it. Teachers, parents, and students wrote thoughts and wishes for the grieving Columbine community. While there were many heart-felt messages, there were some that were shockingly offensive. These negative messages brought the incident in Colorado even closer to home. We realized that there was more tension within our own atmosphere than we had previously thought. April 1999 was a month that will never be forgotten.

"Parents, teachers, and students unite." Ms. Boggart adds her thoughts to the banner, which has messages from people of all ages, as Shondra Ingram-Beal looks on.

Words of strength and courage. Last spring, Dr. Marini emphasized that we must talk openly about the problems in our school in order to solve them. Our former principal signs the banner along with post-graduates Maya Burton and Marla Kaplan.

The LAZY of daze summer

North kicks back in '99

* "Worked at a golf course"- Andy Leibler

"Guys, stand still... please!" Augie Howe and Katie Kavanagh had a hard time rounding up their swim class at Beaver Day Camp, but were successful in the end..

We made it to the top... so where is Starbucks? Trailblazers Justine Tennant and Dana Ross conquered Whiteface Mountain on the Appalachean mountain range in New Hampshire.

"Here comes the bride's...maid." Wendy Chan was proud and happy to serve as a junior bridesmaid in her sister's wedding last summer.

"Watch out, those things can spit!" Jennie Goldstein and Alexa Simon spent the summer in Israel along with Michelle Battat who is not pictured. Here they learn the fine art of riding a Bedouin camel.

"Ashley, you missed a spot!" Ashley Baron paints a girl's locker room on her community service trip to Costa Rica.

Wendy Gertel tries to teach this palace guard how to smile. Last Summer Wendy took a trip to Norway, Finland and Sweden. Hopefully, she met other people who were more communicative.

Bare Naked fans (although this crew decided to wear clothes): Dan Berman, Rebecca Booth-Fox and Stacy Rolfe attended a BareNaked Ladies concert at the Tweeter Center. Proudly displaying their "Mix 98.5" competition poster, they anxiously await the big event.

Senior SUPERiority

Spirit Day, Powder Puff and the Thanksgiving Game

Intimidation! Everyone moves out of the way when Sasha Svendsen steps on the field.

Don't mess with the Seniors! Rodney Bennet has no doubt that the class of 2000 is the best.

The football league decided that cups were mandatory. Terry Rowe checks Brookline's compliancy.

Sweet revenge--uh, we mean victory! Lucia Carballo, Rose DiSalvo , Aoife O'Donovan and Steve McCarthy celebrate a Powder Puff win.

"I never thought being a Senior could feel so good." Jordana Goren, Daren Simkin, and Hugh Auchincloss are in awe of the power of Spirit Day.

The Circle of Senior Death!!! Clockwise : Jessica Tower, Becky Gluskin, Michelle Battat, Jenny Knipe, Tess MacDonald, Wendy Gertel, Jaime Katzman, Lori Hill, Carrie Henry, Liz Nolan and Lauren Gallegher huddle up before the next play.

"Yea Juniors, Juniors are cool, go Juniors..." Ben Brill, Charley Granberg, Alex Hitch, Hannah Wurzel, Matt Lyons and Adam Case have spirit tie-dye for.

"We've got our music to keep us warm" The band went topless at the Thanksgiving game against Brookline. They had another message painted on them but they decided to leave the pants on.

Before we revel in Spirit Day and Powder Puff '99, let's take a little history quiz.

1. Who came in second for the battle of the classes when they were only Sophomores, beating the Juniors?
Answer- The Class of 2000!!!

2. Who won the powder puff against the senior class of '99?
Answer- Uhm.. obviously the class of 2000!

3. In conclusion, which class is the best ?
Answer- Let's see... that would be that wonderful class of 2000 (sorry '99 about all those losses, you just couldn't cut it).

So it is without a doubt that the class of 2000 is in a class above the rest. Therefore, we are proud to show our tiger spirit and light the way for all those underclassmen. Powder Puff '99 was a great follow up to last year's game, making the 2000 girls 2-0. Powder Puff MVP of the year Michelle Battat said," It was a close game, but we showed them who wears the pants in this school!"

Go tigers! Beat Brookline! Don't drop me! Nikki Quinn shows that tiger spirit can take you to great heights at the Pep Rally.

Read it and weep! Wendy Gertel, Maya Smitts, Sarah Ruben, Jessica Wong, Lara Goldstone, Daphne Moked and Lindsey Silken say that all signs are pointing to Senior supremicy.

And now it's time for a breakdown... Jane Dukett celebrates the with a little victory dance.

New Year's Resolutions:

"I will stop treating underclassmen like second-class citizens."- Morgan Russell

"I will graduate."- John Jay

"I will stop forging my contract slips." -Tovah Poster

"I will skip no more than one class a period."- Jessica Sudeall

"I will stop pissing off Mrs. Karp by chewing gum in the language lab." -Justine Tennant

"I will stop writing subliminal messexages."- Becky Gluskin

"I will come to terms with the fact that the phone is not a toy." -John Davis

" I will stop playing drug wars in math class - no I won't." -Adam Lunin

"I will clean my attic."- Jay Roudebush

"I will not get any more parking tickets." -Melissa Decew.

"I will make sure that I don't get quoted for anything incriminating." -Kyle Minaker.

"I will improve my caps skills." -Gabe Lubin

"I will conserve energy by not going to classes on the fourth floor." -Lindsay Silken

"I will make sure that the second half of senior year is a productive waste of time...." -The class of 2000

Predictions for the Future:

"There will be a lot of flying cars and robots, and carrots, lots of carrots."

"The future is now."

Uncle Max Wants You to keep your New Year's Resolution.

"Okay Angela, the glasses are really cool now, but just wait until 2001 when they will be soooo last year!" Liz Katz gives up-to-date fashion predictions for the millennium.

Millennium Madness

Good, quality sparkling apple cider fun! Counter-clockwise (just to be different): Sam Rothschild, Keith Truitt, Kyle Minaker, Rob Ryan, Jesse Cutler, Derek Mandatory and Jeff Lehrberg.

"Come on Dave, it's a New Year! Let's run off to Broadway like we always said we would." Kevin Durikas and David Zomer dance their way into the New Year.

And the New Look of the Millennium is... plastic shirts, leopard pants, silver tights, nd feather boas. Lucia Carballo, Rose DiSalvo, Amy Kirsztajn, and Justine Tennant dressed up for the occasion.

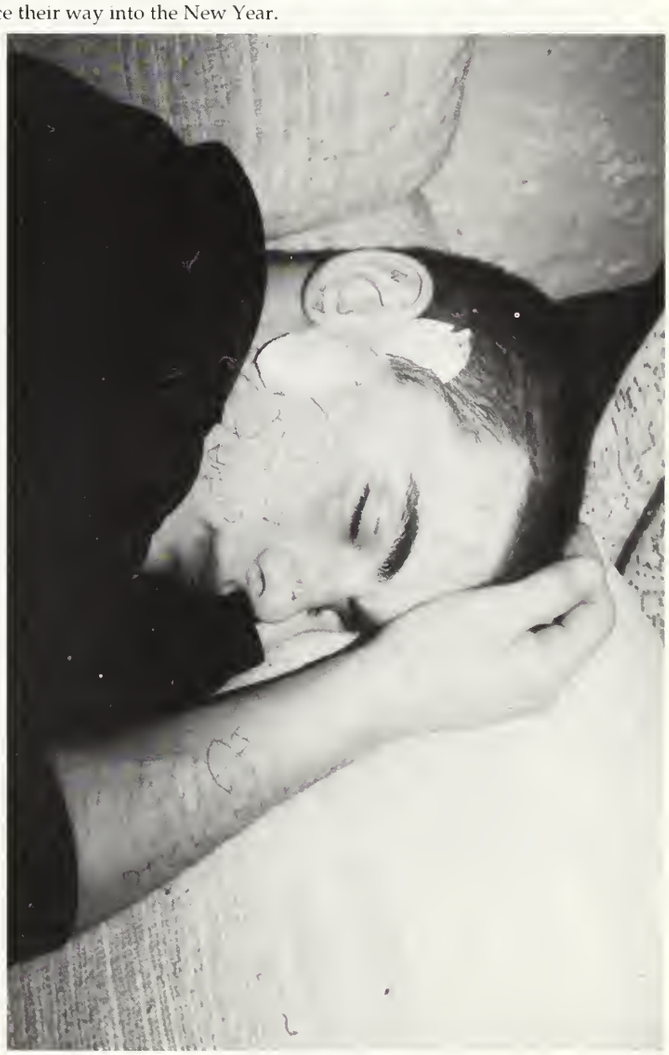

How will you spend your New Year's?

"A block party with a cookout and activites." -Larry Allan

"I will have so much fun, I won't even remember what I did." -Junior on Main St. wearing a blue shirt

"I will be in my fallout shelter playing Tetris." -Sophomore with glasses

"I plan on having a huge party and getting in a lot of trouble." -Rambunctious little freshman

It's 9:37 pm on New Years Eve and the potato chip/ graffiti fairy has just paid her visit to John Davis. Sweet Dreams...

After the BELL

"Yo quiero Taco Bell!(good thing it's across the street)" Joleen Fitzgerald cuddles up to a Chihuahua at her after-school job at Newtonville Pet.

"No! Not another Gap commercial!...." Jay Roudebush and Zim Parchi lift Katy Litwak and Kyr Norsigian during a swing dance lesson at the YMCA.

"I'm buying this for purely educational purposes." Dominic Sidhu buys a book from Monika Korsnes, an employee of Newtonville Books.

"We stole the cookies from the cookie jar!" (just kidding!).... Cafe Appassionat employees Jonah Stern and Valerie Mazzola serve up the good stuff.

M-Mmmmm..." Sweety Tomatoes employees Liz Katz, Justin Kirkland-Smith, Debbie Mendel, Justine Tennant, and Emily Karelis disprove that old age myth, "Too many cooks spoil the pizza."

Hot Crossed Buns! Great Harvest employees Jarad Blake, Danielle Kilroy, and Austin Fossey have a little too much fun with the flour and rolling pin. (We know it's hot in here, guys, but....)

"Do I have to leave my backpack at the door, too?" Stephanie Williams smiles from behind the CVS counter.

What to do with all those wonderful hours of free time after school? Hmmmm... well I could think of a lot of unproductive things to do, but it looks like many North students choose to make use of their time. If your parents are like most and no longer give you ten bucks because you're a super kid, then you will need a new cash source. That's where jobs come in. From behind the counter at that pizza place to under the hood of a car, North students are all over Newton punching in the clock. "I work because I need the money, but it's not that bad," said Becky Gluskin. So next time a fellow Tiger waits on your table, show some Tiger pride and give them a big tip.

"Paper or Plastic?" Not a tough question for out students! Josh Abrams and Matthias Aufiero cash and bag groceries at Star Market.

"It's fun to guard at YMCA!" Beth Baratz and Hartley Waggener turn their backs momentarily on the swimmers to face the student intruder with the camera.

Dancing Fools. Seniors Augie Howe, Zim Parchi, Gabe Greenberg, Hannah Tennent-Moore, Danielle Birritella, Emma Hellman-Mass, Jay Roudebush, Katy Litwak, Liam McRell, Carrie Henry and Caitlin Thomas-Lepore clear the dance floor.

The First Dance

You've got to dance like nobody's watching...

Apparently that is the attitude for most dance goers here. This year there were a few new dance policies, like having the doors only open for a half an hour and requiring breathalyzer tests for the seemingly-not-so-sober. Despite these precautions some things will never change. Some students get their groove on the dance floor while others sit and watch on the sidelines." At dances you see a side of people that you don't usually see in school." Admits Emily Karelis. After all these years did it ever occur to anyone that we are dancing in our cafeteria? That the temperature is close to one hundred degrees and that there is a faint smell of Luigi's Fries?

Liam McRell dips Carrie Henry as the music dictates.

Making up for no 70's dance last year... Senior Leah Aronin's signature style brings back the disco era.

The Dancing Queen" Danielle Birrittella heats up the dance floor.

Yes, soccer players do have rhythm! Junior Jeff Satwich shows the ladies that he is a smooth operator both on and off the field.

ight about now, the funk is Jenna's rother. Check it out, Jenna Spackman finds ıe funk.

People of the world spice up the dance! Gaelan Gowdey-Chase, Wendy Gertel, Kelly Harper, and Maya Smits come to the dance ready to party.

Come on, ride the train...

...choo choo ride it on !

Kilts are coming back! Jeff Li assures everyone that the Braveheart look will be all the rage this spring.

Curious George gets a little too curious. Erika Wood and her monkey hang around in blue.

"I take Halloween very seriously." Frank Skeltreato painted his face as a Skeleton. Get it?

"We go together like blah blah, yadda yadda, ding dong, you know the rest." Jennifer Caruso dresses as Rizzo from Grease and Courtney Gowens dresses for a nap.

"I can't wait until I get my wings, then I won't need crutches!" Rebecca Greene.

A Less Competetive Halloween

This year North students decided to dress up just for fun, no contests involved. Without the contest, many slacked off on the Halloween theme, but a special few carried out the terrifying tradition. Exclaimed Tovah Poster, "It's sorta scary when some random kid walks through the hall carrying a bloody head and you can't see his face. But hey, that's the halloween spirit!"

These two juxtaposed jesters just jump at the chance to joke around. Roman Khitrik and Ellie Stephania add a little humor to Halloween.

it's natural... Stephanie Cotter and Angela icette sport the latest in hair fashions.

Halloween Hoochies Jessie Anderson-Berens and Rachel Brighton get dressed up to get down.

What are the scariest things about the Halloween dance?

1. The police man and his breathalyzer
2. People who can't dance
3. The amount of perspiration in the air
4. The Bathrooms...
5. Freshman girls wearing tube tops

Opposites Attract. A devil and an angel get together...anything's possible on Halloween.

Igor Gueths uses a program created for blind students by Microsoft called "Jaws for Windows". The program uses a computer voice to read text off of the screen to the student, while typing. Along with Tasha (pictured at left), they both attend mainstream classes and face the same challenges that all new freshmen do every year. "Find my way around the building was confusing at first, but it is better now".

The Leadership 2000 class is a unique course that draws upon the diversity of the school and helps to prepare students to be leaders in the coming century. The course allows students from various racial and ethnic backgrounds to discuss issues openly and honestly. This atmosphere of communication allows students to learn directly from one another about their perspectives regarding school, themselves, and society. Through historical and contemporary debates about education and becoming actively involved in the school and outside community, the students explore leadership models and actions.

The Leadership 2000 class was founded by Annie Blais, Paula Diggs, Inez Dover, Matt Keegan, and Rob Stark after being called on by Dr. Marini to create a class which would be comprised of a diverse group of students who were leaders within the school. They would utilize the Thompson Island Retreat as a rallying point for the class.

Beginning in 1995, the Leadership 2000 class took on an almost impossible job: trying to bring together our diverse,yet segregated, school. Dr. Marini turned to the Leadership 2000 class last spring to organize and host the all school assembly ...a response to a bomb threat and to hate graffiti, both of which affected our students' sense of security after the Columbine tragedy.

Pounding music, flashing lights, black and orange decorations, and a variety of beautiful dresses made for an unforgettable evening at the Paradise Rock Club in Boston on Saturday, May 8, 1999, when the Class of 2000 held their Junior Semi-Formal.

Students filled the dance floor the entire night, bumping and grinding to popular music; when tired, they socialized at the tables, enjoying a variety of complimentary hors d'oeuvres and drinks.

"I didn't stop dancing the entire night," raved Mike Boucher.

According to Class of 2000 President Tim Urban, there was a great turnout for the event, with approximately 420 students attending.

As Summer Sizzles to a close, Senior Stress season starts

On September 7, 1999 the Class of 2000 entered Newton North High School for their "last first day."

One thought dominated everyone's mind: Senior Slump. Despite most teachers' claims that this phenomenon "does not exist," Robyn Bella spoke for the entire senior class when she said, "We all know it does! We're seniors; we're the oldest; we're going to milk this year for all it's worth!"

On the first day of school, class officers greeted the Class of 2000 with the Senior Breakfast. Students enjoyed orange juice and Brueggers' bagels while swapping summer stories, comparing schedules, and wondering, "Why is there no B Block on Mondays?"

Despite their general excitement, seniors were disappointed to learn that the locks for senior lockers would not be available for at least two weeks. The locker lottery proceeded as usual, but seniors would not be able to use their lockers until about a month later. Frustrated seniors dumped their bags on Main Street or in the Adams House Office.

The huge crowds on Main Street also shocked most seniors. The freshman class, over 600 strong, was the largest class to enter the school in over a decade. "There are too many freshmen! They're taking over our world!" said Caitlin Thomas-Lepore.

Although many seniors shared Caitlin's sentiments, Steve Flusberg disagreed. "I don't mind all of the freshmen. It only gives me more power, being the senior that I am."

Thoughtprints

Thoughtprints is Newton North's popular literary and art publication. Each year students produce a calender and a magazine. The entire process is fielded by Thoughtprints editors, Jess Sauer, Tami Lustig, Ariela Summit, Lindsay Silken, Alex Rosenberg, Rachel Cohen, Tom Huddleston, and Tyler Newman, with Gary Elliot as the advisor. The staff meets once a week to critique submitted pieces, which include drawings, paintings, ceramics, photography, poetry, and prose. Members then vote on each piece to decide whether or not it will be published. Thoughtprints is a creative outlet for all of North's talented writers and artists.

Newtonian two thousand

The Newtonian geared up for its millennium edition in May of 1999. The editor-in-chief, Jeremy Lowenstein, along with the advisor, Nan Feldon, and graphic arts editor Michelle Chu, attended two yearbook conferences in the Spring to learn all about the work that was in store for the staff. Then, the editors put the book aside as they headed off for Summer vacation; however, it was not long before they called the first meeting to begin the group effort of designing and publishing the upcoming yearbook. As the summer drew to a close, there was a special "moving day" when the yearbook office was refurbished. For a few days before school, yearbook preparation took place on the floor as the office underwent its well-deserved facelift. Once school began, the Newtonian staff came into school psyched to produce the best yearbook Newton North had ever seen. The primary goal for this year's book was to represent Newton North in its entirety.

Senior Portraits Editors Amy Kirstajn and Z Rosenbaum luagh in the middle of an afternoon typing senior blurbs.

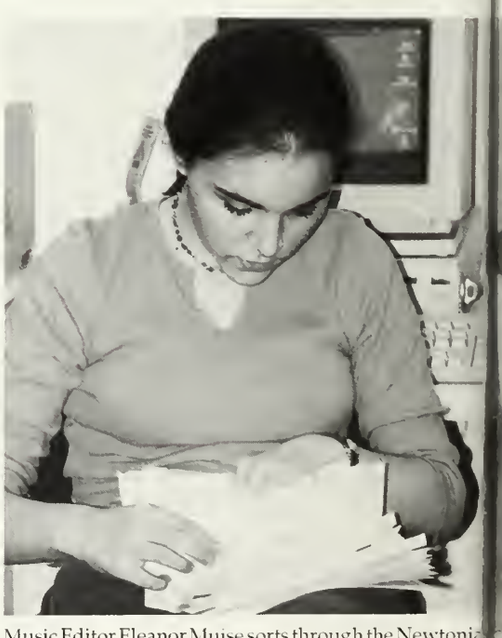

"We barely squeezed by at the beginning because we didn't get pictures from the photographer until two weeks before our first few deadlines," said Lowenstein, "It was pretty stressful." However, there was never a dull moment in the yearbook office: from Senior Life's cake and late-night dinners to Saturday morning breakfasts and superstar poses, we always managed to have fun, even during our stressful moments.

Engaging English

Complexities of Communication

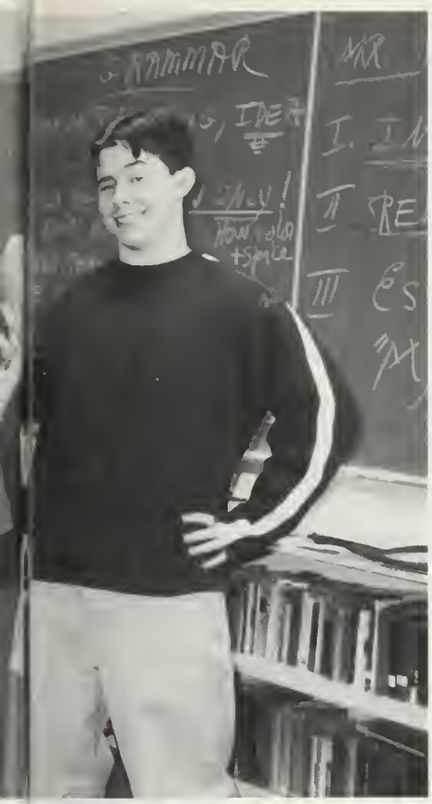

In English classes, teachers and students bring literature to life. Students vividly remember performing The Glass Menagerie, hearing Zen stories, and watching The Simpsons in order to learn about satire. While many such activities are unconventional, they have helped students learn how to express their own thoughts and understand the complex ideas of others. These abilities manifest themselves when seniors write about Hamlet in what Dr. Keegan refers to as "the biggest paper of your high school career;"and when juniors debate whether or not Huck Finn is appropriate reading material for school. Even more remarkably, whether students are dissecting Shakespeare or watching cartoons, they never lack enthusiasm.

Newton North High School, 360 Lowell Ave., Newtonville, Mass. 02460

Hours of meticulous work on The Newtonite, North's school newspaper, pays off: this year, The Newtonite won a Gold medal from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association and a Gallup Award from the Quill and Scroll society.

The Newtonite, a biweekly publication, covers events inside and outside of school. In addition to the news, it provides community opinions, coverage of the arts, sports updates and timely features.

Work for The Newtonite includes writing articles, taking photos, checking and double-checking facts, designing pages and pasting them up; all of it comes together 16 times a year on Wednesday press nights, which usually extend into the morning before the paper goes to print.

This year, The Newtonite also faced some particularly important news issues, including the continuing battle over pluses and minuses, and the Columbine murders. Moving into the new millennium, The Newtonite has also been working on upgrading their use of technology to publish the paper.

Staffers had a little fun on the side, as well. Pizza breaks in the middle of Wednesday press nights were a continued ritual this year, offering a chance to laugh and relax. The editors and managers also kicked back in New York City at a three-day conference at Columbia University.

"It's been real," said Brian Wolfe, co-editor-in-chief with Simona Schneider. "We all put so much of ourselves into getting the job done that you can't help but be proud of the finished product."

Stairways to Science

It takes a unique Science Department to create a lesson plan that involves dropping eggs on a teacher's head. This egg drop is incorporated into the curriculum of several classes, and is one of the many creative assignments in which science students participate. The Pringles Challenge is another example. Physics students mail a potato chip to their teacher in the hope that it will arrive in one piece. Other well known activities of the science department include the chemistry classes' annual journey to the beer factory and field studies' weekly trips to the Charles River. Even AP biology takes on the both creative and scientific challenge of stringing DNA. Thus, Newton North students have fun while they gain an in depth understanding of the scientific world.

Creation Begins with Imagination

Our Art Department combines almost every aspect of the artistic experience to fully educate its students. Classes vary from basic photography, to art history, to an intensive art major. The department works hard to provide students with an open, artistically challenging environment. In projects such as self-portraits, technical studies, and still lifes, students use a variety of materials and mediums to compose their art. Talented students are well prepared to pursue their artistic interests after high school. Each year, involved seniors are chosen to create the murals that fill our corridors with colorful warmth, exemplifying the diversity of our school. Seniors combine their artistic education with their own individuality to create art work that enables all students to benefit as they rush from class to class.

In the New Millennium, who can say?

"No! The samurai got sick, fell off his horse and collapsed on the floor!" yelled Leo Shmuylovich from the back of the room. Josh Weinberg yelled back, "No, I disagree! The samurai was shot by the husband and collapsed on the ground with arrows sticking from his back!" This is a typical heated discussion taking place in the new East Asian Studies class, taught by Lisa Faden. In East Asian Studies, juniors and seniors explore different aspects of Japanese and Chinese language, art and history through readings, presentations and movies such as Roshomon, Shall We Dance? and The First Emperor. Ching Lee, a junior, stated that one of her favorite aspects of the class was its diversity. She added that the discussions gave her an American view of Asian culture and a wide variety of responses to the different issues brought up in class.

Crossing Borders and Making Friends

This year for the first time, we participated in an exchange with a Cuban school. The exchange, organized by Denise Cremin and Rob Stark for their Caribbean Civilization class, was an enlightening experience for everyone. According to Ms. Cremin, the American students noticed that Havana is in a state of "noble decay." She felt that there was pride in the atmosphere despite the rubble in the streets. Ms. Cremin also noted that observing the poverty in Cuba was an "eye opener" for the North students, who stayed both in boarding schools and in private homes. It is very hard to predict how the Cubans will be affected from their time spent in America, but North students couldn't wait to make sure that the visitors' experience was memorable.

EDCO Edge

Since 1973, EDCO (Program for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing) has included kids from towns as far away as Pepperell, Malden and Weymouth. Our program was one of the first of its kind in the USA and is the longest lasting in Massachsetts. A significant part of the school community, EDCO students are offered support services that ensure academic success. A joint effort between mainstream and EDCO staffs provide a variety of courses. EDCO employs six full time American Language interpreters for students in mainstream classes. Hearing students are encouraged to take American Sign Language classes, taught by a deaf teachers, hopefully helping to promote understanding and friendship between hearing and deaf students.

It's hard to imagine how our ESL/Bilingual program could have grown so large this year -- but it has. This program offers support for sixty-three students whose first language is not English. All of the students take mainstream classes in addition to ESL, and one half of ESL students take mainstream classes exclusively. These students turn to ESL faculty for help with their class work if needed. ESL has a diversity that is extremely impressive; it teaches kids who speak sixteen different languages from twenty-five different countries. While this diversity alone makes the ESL program extraordinary, the program is continuing to improve. This year for the first time, biology classes are offered as part of the ESL curriculum. During one lesson, the class dissected owl pellets and found the intact skull of a decapitated rat. The ESL students have shown that when the language barrier is knocked down, there is no limit to what students can achieve.

Practical Skills In-school and Out

They Last For Life

Students that take classes in the clothing and consumer sciences department can learn to create everything from prom dresses to lesson plans. This department offers instruction in culinary arts, child development, and the design and manufacturing of clothing, Students find these classes particularly rewarding because the skills that they gain are applicable to their lives.

Eleanor Kong ('99), Guy Mann ('99), Jason Herfert-Hebert ('99), Lindsey Giardina, ... Anderson received gifts of frozen chowder from a grateful Legal Sea Food. Graphic redesigned their menus.

One requirement of a child-hood development class is that students carry around a doll for a period of time and pretend that it is a real baby. By doing this, students learn first-hand about the implications of being responsible for a child. And, in the clothing classes, students produce things that they actually wear. The first year students have already learned enough to make purses. But perhaps most excitingly, if you take a class in the culinary arts, you may really be able to claim that the dog ate your homework.

The Tiger's Loft

This year, the students that run our very own mini-restaurant have assumed even greater responsibilty for providing the teachers with food. As they have in past years, the students in the Exploratory classes (which meet four times a week) are involved in serving the customers, ringing up sales on the cash register, and preparing dishes like salads and deli sandwiches. The kids who major in culinary arts and devote three periods a day to the Tiger's Loft are also in charge of supplying every other aspect of the menu, down to the sauces. Teacher Cynthia Handley said that this year, the jobs of the kitchen staff have become even more complex. For the first time, students have decided on the menu, called in orders for ingredients, and established prices for all the food they sell. This hard work has paid off, as the Tiger's Loft has gained immense recognition from the faculty. They supplied the food for one TGIF faculty breakfast, and due to the success of this catering job, they are now planning to provide the refreshments for another. Maybe these Tiger Loft breakfasts explain why teachers are so energized during those brutally early morning classes.

Dreaming is the Universal Language

What makes our language department so unique is the broad range of offerings available to students. We can choose romantic or classic languages, and are offered everything from Ms. Timberlake's AP Spanish class, which is treated to a barbeque at the end of the year to Mr. Phalen's AP French Literature class, described by Kate Schlesinger as "another English class, except in French". Other choices include Latin, Italian, Russian, and Chinese, and opportunities to travel all over the world on exchanges abound.

One of the most interesting aspects of the language department is the eccentric Latin teacher, Mr. Mitchell, whom Peter Epstein swears, "was Julius Caesar". The most vivid memories that Zoe Rosenbaum has of Mr. Mitchell include him talking about running marathons, being ranked seventeenth in the world in the decathalon, and being struck by lightning- twice. All those who take advantage of the Latin branch of the language department hope that Mr. Mitchell will continue teaching for a few thousand more years.

Compasses, Calculators & Computers: Business and Math during Y2k

All of these pictures of people working with computers were taken before the millenium, and before the potential Y2K crisis. Luckily for us, the computer classes provide students with knowledge so broad that if a crisis did occur on December 31st, we would all have been in good hands.

Students in the math and business department can take electives in computers and business management, as well as more traditional math classes that cover topics ranging from trigonometry to geometry. This year math classes have continued to excite students with non-conventional activites. Ms. Lichtman's senior class did an activity in which they learned about planetary orbits and Mr. Kerins helps his students prepare for tests by playing a mathematical version of the popular game show, Press Your Luck. Through games and hands-on activites, the math and business department finds new ways to teach material that has a timeless presence.

A Different Style

Special Education

The programs designed for students who thrive in alternative learning environments include Network, Spring Board, New Start, , the Learning Center Cluster, and the Pilot Program. Highlighting the Pilot Program, the Newtonian interviewed student Christine Tobin, who said that she likes Pilot because,"It's easier to learn when you don't have to sit at a desk." Students appreciate the laid- back atmosphere; many kids literally take off their shoes and relax while they learn. This Program also includes outside activities for which shoes are a necessity. They saw glass blowing at the UMASS College of Art and spent a day with Project Adventure in Hamilton to enjoy a ropes course developing trust for one another. Students from the Pilot Program compete in a sports league of alternative high schools in Greater Boston, playing football, basketball, and softball. The Pilot Program really is a school within a school.

- A Double Entendre by Norm Swerling

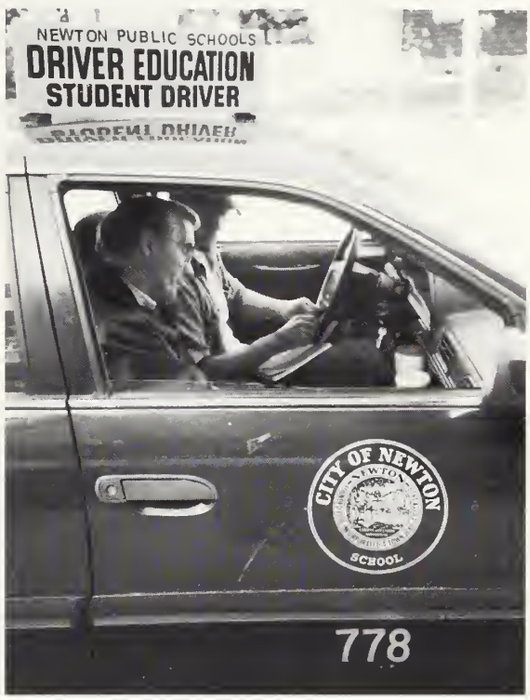

Driver's Education at Newton North has always been an important asset. So many of North's students have such complicated lives, and it is hard to find time to schedule Driver's Education lessons after school. Being able to take the course in school allows students to learn the basics of Driver's Education while still keeping up with their busy schedules. Everyone who has taken this class has many memories to share. One senior commented, "I remember Driver's Education. Mr. Swerling has this book of quotes and at the beginning of each class he would read us a quote as a preface to the day's subject." Other students have vivid memories of the On-The-Road portion of the class. Many students schedule On-The-Road after school, but for those of us who cannot make the after school commitment, it is offered during free blocks or study halls as an option. Mr. Doliver and Mr. Cook are concrete driving instructors. Both teachers makes sure that students know all the important aspects of driving before giving them the driver's certificate. Driver's Education has been an influential part of Newton North's curriculum and students appreciate the dedication and strength of its teachers.

A conscientious student takes a practice test for her learner's permit before going to the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

Learning to Study

A Study in Itself

It's a fact that students often have trouble motivating themselves to study. But there is hope...many kids have realized that if they promise themselves food while they study, then they are inspired to hit the books. We asked these kids about their magic foods and they were all passionale about the following suggestions:

- "Triscuits!" -Eleanor Muise
- "I have to study with hot chocolate in a big comfy bed," - Judy Mui
- "Clementines, but I always stop studying at ten o'clock."-Katie Bengston
- "I warm my brain up with a cup of hot chocolate." Anonymous
- "Coke and oreos, definitely!"- Rebecca Booth-Fox
- "Confectioner's sugar, eaten correctly from a spoon." - Alana Woonteiler

And, when we asked Pete Epstein, who was recently accepted to Harvard University, what he ate when he studied, he simply said, "I don't study."

Aaron Lopin will go to any length and any distance to find solitude to study.

Faculty 1999-2000

Adams Housemaster, Peter Capodilupo salutes the Class of 2000.

To the Class of 2000-

"It has been a pleasure and a privilege to know you and to work with you. As a class, you marked and shaped our school with your labor, your passions, and your energy. You took the mortar and bricks of our building and with your wonderful diversity made it a community that is rich with care and commitment. You owned your actions, whether good or bad, and always looked inward in order to move onward. Take care, and start this century the way you finished the last one, with powerful passion and conscientous conduct!"

Cappy's trusted partner-in-crime, Adams House Secretary Betty Furey*, was always there to help the seniors through the trials and tribulations of senior year..*

The Paul E. Elicker Award for Excellence in Teaching

In 1991, Paul H. Elicker, Newton High School's class of 1940, established for the faculty of Newton North High School the Paul E. Elicker Award for Excellence in Teaching. His generous gift is a tribute to his father, who was the principal of Newton High School from 1932 to 1940. It is inspired by the careers of his two extraordinary teachers, Floyd Rinker and Margaret South. Each year two awards of $3500 each are funded by Mr. Elicker's Grant. Through the Elicker Award, excellence in teaching, past and present, is honored. By agreement with Mr. Elicker, excellence is broadly defined as: deep appreciation and knowledge of subject matter, teaching that stretches the minds of students, and standards for performance that inspire excellence.

Can't find your way at North? Ask Dr. Ticchi!

Don't try to pull a fast one on Dr. David Ticchi, North's Tech Voc Outreach Career Specialist. Not only is he able to maneuver efficiently through the labyrinth of our hallways, but Dr. Ticchi, blind since birth, has learned to do things in different ways by using the skills of blindness. Dr. Ticchi works with counselors, principals, parents and interested students trying to place kids into appropriate Tech Voc openings. Sixty percent of our Tech Voc students go on to find careers in related fields. Dr. Ticchi would like to be seen as a role model for all students, not just disabled ones. He was recently honored by the Mass. Association for the Blind's "Uncommon Vision Award," for improving accessibility, services and advocacy for individuals with vision loss.

A Million Dollar Experience?

$32,000 in cash!

Math teacher Bowen Kerins got to test his knowledge in front of the nation on ABC's new hit gameshow, "Who Wants To Be A Millionaire?" on February 3.

The "phone a friend" lifeline enabled Kerins to choose up to 5 friends, three of which were teachers at North: Alan MacDougall, George Bower and Bernie Flanagan. Kerins didn't need a lifeline for questions like "How many degrees are there in a right angle?" However, for the ques "Whose music video did Courtney Cox make her first debut?", Ke didn't hesitate to call Alan MacDougall, the King of Pop Cult Kerins lost the game on a question about James Michner's novels, u walked away from the show with $32,000. Kerins said he is plann on investing the money.

A Tribute from Staff to Students

Our teachers and staff have seen a lot throughout the years. Ron Barndt remembers that students used to wear Bermuda shorts on specified days, and Charlotte Mason vividly recalls a parade that took place in 1989, on United Nations Day. During that event, the entire school marched down Main Street with the band playing "It's a Small World." Beth Holmberg has a less peaceful memory from North. She was a student in Monty Well's chemistry class in 1978. His "rather vigorous sodium reaction" resulted in a a visit from the fire department, a foam truck, and a one hour fire drill. Remarkably, Ms. Holmberg has recovered from this hair-raising experience and has returned to North... as a science teacher! Her return demonstrates the dedication that most of the staff members have for the school and for their students.

"Mosca": Discover something you truly love & you'll never have to work a day in your life... like me.

Mr. McAndrews: Never stop; it's hard to hit a moving target.

Mrs. Furey: The sky's the limit. I know each and every one of you will someday fulfill your dreams. Always remember, whatever you do, BE HAPPY.

Mr. Phelan: No bugs on you.

Ms. Byers: When I say goodbye to my seniors, I will feel like a mother that is taking her child to school for the first time.

Mr. Ticchi: I wish the class of 2000 success: share your education with others.

Mr. S. Reid: Thanks Class of 2000 for putting up with my first year teaching. Make lots of money & remember to bring it back to me (Justin).

Ms. Thompson: Meet me at the steps of the Science Museum in the year 2050.

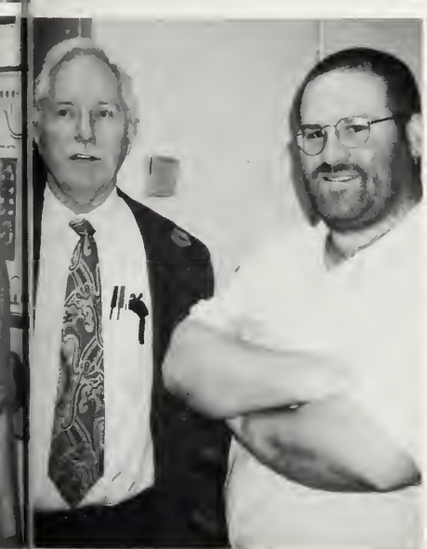

Mrs. Feldon: Hold yourselves accountable.

Mr. Elliott: Love ya, baby.

Mr. Montague: To all my students send me a postcard.

Mr. Giusti: Keep happiness in your life by being able to smile and laugh at yourself.

Ms. Cremin: Play more. Enjoy life. Eat healthy food. Keep your wits about you and read lots of poetry.

Mr. Keegan: Life is a series of wonderfully painful transitions.

Mr. Kamar: Thank you for sharing hours of educational bliss & for teaching me as much as I taught you.

Mr. Phillipson: A scintillating book is the only immortality. Write & read!

Mr. G. Bower: Have a good time!

Mrs. Ghattas: Best wishes to the class of the new millennium. You will make the difference.

Ms. Ostrer: I wish each class member success and happiness in all they do in the years ahead.

Ms. Donlan: "The highest form of wisdom is kindness." Live, love & laugh a lot.

Mr. Travers: Love your mother and father.

Mr. Kelly: Being a custodian at North High is not just a job: it's an adventure . . . an excellent adventure.

Mr. Vignone: The best to Viggy's dudes and dudettes.

Ms. B. Lim: You're good, but you're not that good.

Ms. Dell: Don't smoke. Treat people the way you would like to be treated.

Doc Jones: Keep smiling; it will make people wonder what you've been up to.

Biloxi Bill, New England's official groundhog, would have found his perfect shadow along with students involved in Job Shadow Day, part of Colin Powell's Alliance for Youth Program. The program, sponsored in Newton by the Newton Marriott Hotel and Legal Seafoods, Inc., enables students to "shadow a mentor on the job and to learn how those lessons they're being taught in school are needed in the workplace." Under the direction of Ellen Lovinsky, five lucky students from North were treated to a day in the hotel business complete with breakfast and lunch on the house. When asked what net profit remains out of every $100 of hotel income, Natalie Watkins was able to answer correctly, "$10." Students were encouraged to ask hotel staff any questions they had throughout the day. An interesting fact: the Marriott Hotel, originally an A&W Rootbeer stand in Washington D.C. in 1927, has grown to give its name to over 1,800 international hotels. The hotel's motto is "take care of your associates (employees); they will take care of the customers."

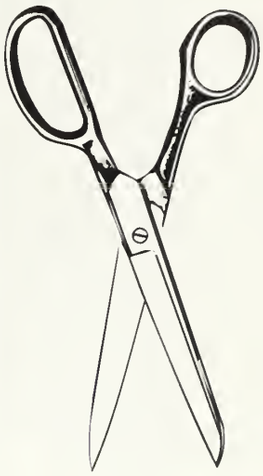

"Hey, this kitchen is set up just like the Tiger's Loft," said Matt Arcovio as the group progressed from fish freezer to pantry.

Blaine Students on the Cutting Edge

"Cutting hair is what I like to do," said Janna Bogdansky, a two year veteran of the Blaine Cosmetology program. "Because of this program, high school has given me a head start on my future career." Cosmetology is a two-year major offered through the Technical-Vocational program. Students go off-campus to Blaine Beauty School in Waltham and spend three hours each afternoon there for two-years. The first year, students study the basics of cosmetology, focusing on health, sanitation and technique. When the first of February rolls around, the students are required to begin working on real customers. Approximately 50% of the students said they were frightened to take on real people after working on mannequins, but they managed to overcome their terror and produce positive results. The eleven students in this year's group were proud to have the winner of the coveted Technical-Vocational Student of the Year Award in their midst: Diane Pelligrini. As to her interest in cosmetology, Pelligrini said, "I like making people feel better about themselves."

A Fond Farewell to the Faculty . . .

Cara Albano: Thank you Ms. Henighan and Ms. Byers for everything. Without you guys I couldn't have made it this far. • Sam Lee: Thank you Ms. Sheinker for all the early mornings and the Tootsie Rolls. PS- Also Ms. McGowan for fleece & for Gidget. • Mike Boucher: Mrs. Degnon's character and spirit have inspired in me a love of Spanish that will continue to shine throughout my life. • Peter Epstein: Mr. Bassett is the man! • Dalibor Kantoci: Thank you Mr. Murphy for helping me out throughout my years at North. • Leo Kishko: Ms. Byers, thanks for everything. You have helped me a lot throughout my high school career. Thanks to Mr. Bower, Ms. Dell, and Ms. Reynolds for keeping me focused on my education. • Ian MacKenzie: Thanks to the instruction of Mr. DePeter, all of his A.P. students will pass the Christmas decoration portion of the A.P. English test with flying colors. • Eliana Strauss: Ms. Truant and Ms. Chisholm, Thank you so much for your encouragement and support. Your inspiration has pulled me through these past four years. • Ben Berlin: To Mr. Keegan.... Thank you so much for what you've taught me. Thanks for being strict in your demands and understanding about results. I now have a better capability to write. You're a wonderful guy. Don't change. • Tovah Poster: Mr. MacIver, Thank you for making my four years here so great. You've always been a great person to talk to. Thanks for the conversation and the bagels in homeroom. • Jenny Rossman: Dear Mammy [Lynn Rossman], You are the best teacher in the entire school, even though you only teach a T.V. class. Thanks for always letting me steal money from your purse. I'll miss you next year! You can still drive with me to school every day. I love you. Love, your wonderful daughter. • Rachel Brighton: Dear Mrs. Davey... You always makes me laugh at myself when I'm being silly. You are an amazing person and have taught me so much about French and about life. Emanuel Achildiev: Throughout my 4 years of high school, I have met 3 teachers that changed me as a person. • Thank you for your knowledge, Dr. Barndt, Mr. Belmarsh, and Mr. Kamar. • Judy L. Mui: Merci beaucoup Mme. Kallikatsos for helping me through. Xie Xie ni Zhu Lao Shi (Mr. Zhu), ni shi hen hao laoshi; keshi ni de kaoshi tai chang! •

from the Class of 2000

Michelle Chu: I know our Chinese 4 class has been the most frustrating class to deal with, but Mr. Zhu, your "unique" personality has kept our class loyal to our Chinese studies. Ms. Lim and Tom Donnellan: Both of you provide the most chaotic environment for people to be "creative" (unfortunately, some people can't handle it and so they go crazy). Ms. Sullivan: Thanks for letting me fiddle around with "teaching." You are an honest person • Katie Bengtson: Dear Cappy and Ms. Byers, You both have helped me through some tough times in my life. Your love and compassion have enabled me to make it, successfully, through high school. Nicole Quinn: I would like to thank Mrs. Feldon for all of her help this year on my essays. She always took the time to help when I needed it! • Jill Hatcher: Mr. Keegan and Mrs. Dover, you've shown me that there are people who care... your persistence and dedication to your students are admirable. Mme. Kallikatsos, because of you, I'm in love with the French language. Merci beaucoup! Mr. Kamar, thanks for helping me find the writer in myself. Mr. Kerins, although I've struggled in your class, thanks for showing me that math is something I truly love doing. To the EDCO staff, much love and thanks for your support. • Mary Lynn Dezso: If people say that friends make the best teachers, then I say that teachers make the best friends. • Jacqueline Lee: I want to thank Mrs. Weider for having such a positive impact on my life for the past 4 years. Your love, commitment, and style of teaching is one of a kind. • Daniel Nomelini: Ms. Seeley: You are the teacher that I would like to say thank you to for everything that you did for me. Your experience and patience helped me a lot during my whole junior year. I will never forget you. You are very special to me.

Vocal Ensemble at Harvestfest

Hard work pays off. Chelsea Boyles, Julia Planine-Truiani, Jessie Hollander, Liz Bobcro and Kayla Greenberg work out tight harmonies togethrer.

A unique group, the Vocal Ensemble is a relatively small class for freshman singers. Mr. Richard Travers, director, combines a musical education with enthusiasm, creating an environment that fosters fast friendships which grow and develop throughout high school. Vocal helps form the basis of the singing end of the music department, giving students the skills needed to excel in Concert Choir, Jubilee, or Family in later years.

Every year Vocal reaches out to the community by caroling at nursing homes in the area, serving two purposes: cheering the elderly during the holidays, and bringing a sense of unity to the group itself. The bonds formed during this freshman year will make Vocal stand out in the memories this year's freshmen for years to come.

"These are a few of my favorite things..." Mr. Travers leads members of his beloved Vocal Ensemble.

A different persepective. No matter how you look at them, the members of the Vocal Ensemble shine.

The "Fresh" Sound of a New Group

Under the shadow of the Wind Ensemble, the Symphonic Band has received little of the attention it deserves. These freshmen, having taken on their first challenge in the music department, are now ready to audition for the Wind Ensemble. The Symphonic Band participated in several school concerts, including Harvestfest, Winterfest, and Pops Night. The band engaged in a variety of musical styles, playing the first movement of Vivaldi's The Spring, Sousa's American Patrol, and a modern piece, Canto. The Symphonic Band will end the year by playing at the graduation ceremony, a fitting farewell to the seniors whose positions they will one day fill.

"The Jubilee Singers is a group dedicated to exploring the world of musical expression primarily rooted in Africa and African American cultural music. This allows the students to explore the history, music and performance of jubilees, spirituals, contemporary and traditional gospel music, jazz and blues, as well as some traditional African pieces. Although focus is on the performance, we believe that knowing the cultural and historical context of the music allows the performer to better express the piece itself. With this learning goal in mind, the Jubilee Singers is dedicated to creating a multicultural space where a group of students who are diverse in every way can come togeher to learn through dialogue and experience about both each other and the influence of a specific musical/cultural heritage."

Family Singers

The Family Singers is a select group of forty-two students under the dynamic leadership of director Richard Travers. The Family Singers have been honored to perform at many state and national conventions, blowing the competition out of the water! This year, the Family Singers traveled to Ireland, performing in Cork, Galway and Dublin, performing a variety of works from around the globe. "Because we are such a large and diverse group, I think it's amazing that "T" can get us together to make something beautiful!" said Dan Berman. Somehow, the ability to unify singers through hard work is one of the gifts given to Richard Travers who, once again, this year, managed to create a Family.

Parlez-vous Wind Ensemble?

Members of the Newton community have always raved about the Wind Ensemble at North. The group has sustained a heritage of talented players and polished performances. The ensemble met four periods a week, rehearsing both as an entire group as well as in sections. At Harvestfest, the school's large fall concert, the ensemble performed Hilliard's Warriors of Prey, Persichetti's Pageant, and Bourgeious's Northern Lament, Opus 154. The group also combined forces with Newton South to perform selections at the graduation service for World War II veterans at Newton's City Hall. For Winterfest, the Wind Ensemble took on Sousa's Semper Fidelis, Hindemith's Symphonic Metamorphosis: March, and Shostakovich's Festive Overture. The high point of the year was spending April vacation touring in France.

Among many other selections, the orchestra performed Saint-Saens' Danse Macabre and Ravel's Pavane of a Dead Princess. Together with the concert choir, the orchestra also staged an impressive production of Schubert's Mass in G. In addition to the Symphony Orchestra, nine upperclassmen were accepted to the Honors String Ensemble. Nothing is more true of the orchestra than Mr. Grossman's words: "The students work hard here and we really make music."

The Man Behind The Magic

An Interview with Gary Elliott

by Alanna Woonteiler

Alanna Woonteiler: Do you have a favorite "Theatre Ink" moment?
Gary Elliott: Not a moment necessarily, but I guess you could say a favorite realization. After a few years I discovered that there is absolutely no end to the talent. It's like a river—an ongoing stream of brilliant and talented young people who deserve to have someone help them shine. There is nothing like seeing someone new to the department, in their first play, dazzle the audience - -and become aware of their talent. It really is a rush. I can't think of a specific moment but there are definitely certain people who were major contributors to Theatre Ink, that I will never forget.

AW: When did you become Theatre Ink's "man behind the magic?"
GE: I took over Theatre Ink from an old friend of mine, Tom Shaffer. During one of those "work to rule" strikes, Tom wouldn't cross the picket line and so all student-directed productions in the upcoming year would be cancelled. I thought this was terrible. "We can't do this," I said, "I'll help the kids and I'll take the heat for it. The kids deserve that much." After a lot of work, we managed to get all of the plays to go up. The next year Tom asked me if I would consider taking over permanent charge. "Me, in charge?" I asked. I really hadn't planned on it, but he pointed out to me that my actress daughter would be very proud of her theatrical dad.

AW: Just how many years ago did you begin producing?
GE: I've been doing this for about 7 years; I was an adviser before. I had done some directing and taught some drama classes at the Warren School. Then I came to North around 1982.

AW: That's the year I was born.
GE: Oh, my god!

AW: What changes did you make in Theatre Ink?
GE: I made sure the musical was put back into the schedule. And we have done it every year since. The first one I produced was Bye Bye Birdie. I also doubled the number of plays. Many people feared that if we produced too many shows the quality of the plays would go down, but that was not the case. I would never compromise the quality of any of the productions.

AW: What is your favorite part about producing?
GE: The best part of producing is giving students the opportunity to do something creative powerful. I like guiding selection of Theater Ink plays. It gives me a thrill to a show come together. I especially like seeing the pride a sense of accomplishment the students possess. There nothing more "all encompaing" than the arts.

AW: When did you first f in love with Theatre?
GE: My best friend, John Adams equity actor that I worked with for years, helped me to appreciate power of theater. He taught me huge difference between the scr versus the living play. I wanted to a part of bringing the play to stage—making it real.

AW: How do you successfully r such a challenging theatre depa ment and how is it that you ne raise your voice?
GE: Well, I survive running the t atre department because I like challenge. And as far as the yelling thing goes I have a philo phy. Once I read this story about "Wind and the Sun." And the st made perfect sense to me. There guy walking down the street wear a coat and the wind and the sun h an argument over who can make guy take his coat off. So the w starts blowing, but as strong as wind is the guy keeps his coat Then the sun begins to sh blisteringly hot rays. The man i hot that he has to take his coat This story taught me that you accomplish a lot more with kindn and gentleness than force and v lence.

AW: Any final words?
GE: Just remember: "The play's thing," "No strings attached," an love you babe!"

"We will draw the curtain and show you the picture."

Twelfth-Night Act I Scene v

Bring Down the House Lights! Places Everyone!

Our Drama History is long and distinguished.

Scene from a Newton High senior play, circa 1920.

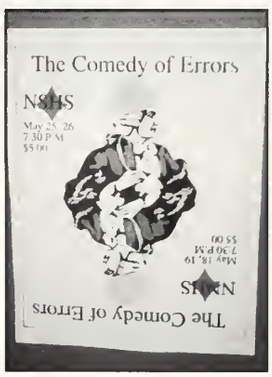

m DePeter, at ease.

The Senior Play, a tradition started in 1910 and a highlight of the school year, was written, cast, and directed each year by a member of the senior class. The gifted senior whose work was selected was accorded serious respect.

In 1937 the faculty produced a play motivated by a desire to raise money for local charities and to purchase school improvements. This tradition continued for several years, and it was the faculty play in 1938 that brought the first comedy production to North.

Theater Ink as we know and love it today, has been a long-standing tradition and has remained a major attraction for students aspiriing to act and direct as well as a treat for theater-going audiences.

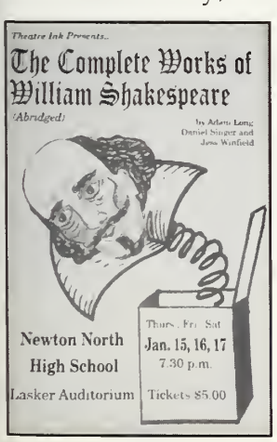

Tom Donnellan('90), Head of the Graphic Arts Deprartment, designed this poster when he was a student here.

The history of drama at North is incomplete without mention of Tom DePeter, director and English teacher. DePeter ajored in Theater and received a Master's Degree in English from Breadloaf School of Middlebury College. He has en active in theater ever since, locating, selecting and directing plays here since 1972. He has an incredible 63 plays his credit, including two personally written adaptations: Nebraska I 80 by John Sayles and The School by Donald rthelme.

DePeter likes to keep current and reads new plays as they come out. "It's important to note that North has often been e first to produce new plays after they play New York," said DePeter. "This is unusual for a high school drama epartment." Dancing at Lughansa by Brian Friel, was produced for the very first time in our own Little Theater.

Having cast many memorable student actors in an assortment of roles, DePeter mentioned three that stood out in his ind, all of whom are successful today: Anne Dudek '93, Jenny Flackett '89, and Julie Taymor '70. The 23-year-old udek, currently acting on Broadway, appeared on the cover of American Theater Magazine and is considered one of e most promising actresses in the country. Flackett continues to write, act, direct, and produce. Madeline, for which e wrote the screenplay, opened at theaters across the country last year. Taymor wrote the Broadway version of The on King and recently directed a film version of Shakespeare's Titus Andronicus, starring Anthony Hopkins, which pened in February, 2000.

Alanna Woonteiler

"Speak the Speech, I pray you..."

Hamlet Act III scene iii

This year we struck gold again in the National Shakespeare Competition! Alanna Woonteiler won the Greater Boston semifinals from a pool of 70 contestants thanks to a stellar performance of Kate from Sakespeare's Taming of the Shrew and a beautifully delivered reading of Sonnet 54. She was placed with the top- ten remaing finalists. Last year Seth Bockley also won the semifinals. Two years ago Noel Armstrong, the winner of the state finals of the National Shakespeare Competition, went on to compete in New York.

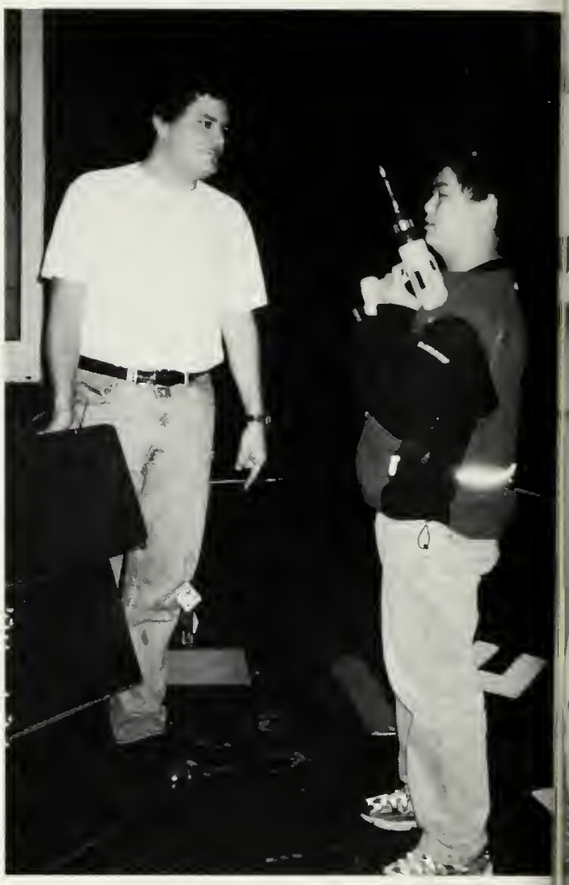

Home sweet home. Mike Garshick, Jonah Williams, and Joni Waldron can often be found taking a breather in their second home - the shop.

STAGE CREW

Dramatic Build-Up

Just when you thought it was safe to go backstage, you hear the sound of the saw, the banging of hammers and the deafening noise of the power drill. Who wields these tools of construction with such joy and such raw skill? Stage crew, of course: the folks responsible for the successful sets, sounds and lights for all 10 plays Theatre Ink has produced this year. None of the plays would be possible without the stage crew. Besides acting, plays also have to have lights designed and hung, sets designed and built, and the desired sound effects and music worked into the show. These jobs all fall into the capable and responsible hands of stage crew. Slaves to their passion, they can often be found working late into the night on weekdays and even on the weekends. Despite the stress and occasional danger of the job, stage crew is always up to the task at hand.

"Hey, watch where you point that thing!" Technical Direct Andres Puigbo, gives Cho Fei Low a good talking to as he stanc at attention with a drill, his tool of choice.

"Hmm...wonder what's under here..." Naomi Forman loots around in the shop for wood to use for a set in progress.

Chris Tom secures the set into place with his ex drilling and his state-of-the-art drill.

"Masters of the House"

"Keepers of the Zoo"

al ng in the cash are the 1999 House Managers : Tommy Huddleston, Alanna Woonteiler, Tamar Avishai and ni Korsnes.

This year the House Managers are the elite troop consisting of Alanna Woonteiler(head manager), Philip Korsnes, Tommy Huddleston and Tamar Avishai. They co-ordinate and schedule Theatre Ink events, sell tickets, usher patrons and perform other managerial type duties. They work overtime to keep Theater Ink rolling. (Too bad they don't get a share of the profits; they just profit by sharing their time and expertise!) Many others help out along the way, such as David Bloom, Sarah Cohen and Abby Stewart. They are indeed, the few and the proud... the Masters of the House!

Mistresses of 129

Cinderella's mice had nothing on these two...

129 Mistresses Liz McQuillan and Liza Rutenbeck romp among the fruits of their ...the costumes.

The life of the wardrobe mistresses is more than meets the eye. In addition to finding clothes, making costumes and tailoring them to fit the players, the girls often have to provide the props. Liz McQuillan could have been spotted last November heaving a large stove, left out on the curb for the garbage truck, into her van and driving off to North with the loot that hopefully would fit the bill for a needed prop. Her parents recall worrying about people stepping on the silverware that had fallen on the floor in one play last year...they recognized it as their own! Liza mainly works on costumes. She had a real challenge during the production of Irma Vep trying to find a size 17 woman's pump for a male actor. Props to these two who help make every show a success.

"Say Cheese!" The cast of She Loves Me: Will Cohen, Tommy Huddleston, Aaron Schwirian, David Bloom, Dan Bassichis, Ari Sommer, Tom Duncombe, Alanna Woonteiler, Rachel Berney Needleman, Remle Stubbs-Dame, Dana Ross, Kevin Burke, Jordana Goren, and Leela Sarathy.

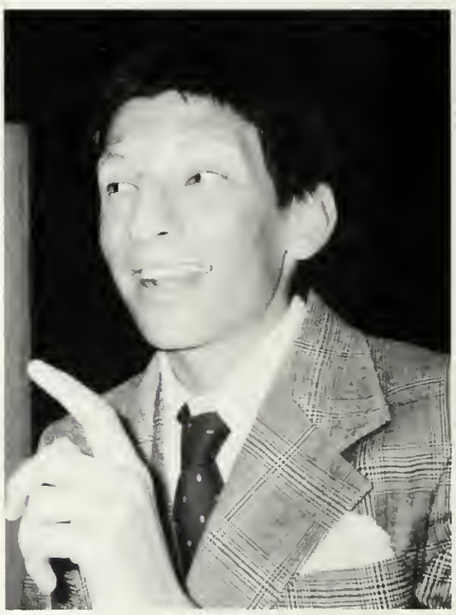

Perfume salesman, Kevin Burke, offers a bottle of his finest to customer, Leela Sarathy.

As their eyes meet, Ilona Ritter (Remle Stubbs-Dame) and Koday (David Bloom) fall head-over-heels in love.

She Loves Me

As the Boss, Dan Bassichis often points his finger at his employees.

She Loves Me, directed by Allison Waggener and Elena Graceffa, is a heart-warming musical about fated lovers. The show centers around the lives of six clerks working in a small perfumerie in Budapest in the 1930s. Two of the clerks in Marichec's Perfumerie, played by NNHS graduates Aaron Schwirian and Rachel Berney Needleman, are George and Amalia. George and Amalia fall deeply in love through a series of anonymous love letters. When they discover each other's true identity, though disbelieving at first, they grow to love each other. The cast, filled with both upper and lower classmen combined with an incredible orchestra, resulted in an extremely entertaining night at the theatre.

Directors Allison Waggener and Elena Graceffa (class of '99), are currently living it up at Yale University.

Shakespeare Richard III

NEWTON NORTH & NEWTON SOUTH

"Zounds!" yells Richard III, played by NNHS graduate Seth Bockley, as his right-hand man Ratcliff disrupts a particularly emotional speech. Newton's annual Shakespeare production involved both Newton North and Newton South students, and this past year they staged the tragic history of Richard III. Cliff, as he is affectionately known around the Newton North theatre department, worked with many of the actors for weeks to choreograph a convincing and impressive battle scene using real weapons. Over the course of two weekends, audiences were frightened, amused, befuddled and dazzled. Once again, Newton students triumphed and produced an incredible performance.

"You've killed the wrong wolf!" proclaims Jane, Danny Rosen, as he sticks his nose in the air.

Lady Enid, Tamar Avishai, and Lord Edgar, Danny Rosen, attempt to have a touching moment amidst the chaos surrounding them.

"Boo!" Masked Vampire, Pat McNally, celebrates after sucking the blood out of victim, Tam Avishai.

"You see, J. Crew was having a sale . . ." Dan Bassichis, as Nicodemus, explains to Lord Edgar, Tommy Huddleston, why he loves his new argyle socks.

Mystery of Irma Vep

Werewolves and Mummies and Vampires, oh my! Yes, The Mystery of Irma Vep, directed by faculty members Tom DePeter and Margaret Brady, was indeed a fun-filled crazy show including all the elements of a hilarious mystery. There were four main parts, and four actors to play them. But what made the action more mysterious to follow was that each actor played two of the roles, switching quite frequently. The overlapping and constant changing of characters made the play hilariously confusing. Lord Edgar's wife, Irma Vep, has been dead for three years and he has recently been remarried to Lady Enid, a stage actress. Jane and Nicodemus, Lord Edgar's trusty servants, meddle with Lord Edgar's affairs as the plot thickens: vampires, dead wives and werewolves weave in and out of the characters' lives. This insane show, put up in Lasker Auditorium, had the audience rolling in their seats.

rew Holbein (Ludie) eyes his wife Mae (Julia Leisinger) as she indulges in a cigarette and a movie magazine.

Allison Krongel, as Mrs. Watts, dreams quietly of returning to her home in Bountiful, Texas.

eady chafing under the rigid supervision of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Watts and her timid son face the wrath of Mae she lashes out.

The Trip to Bountiful

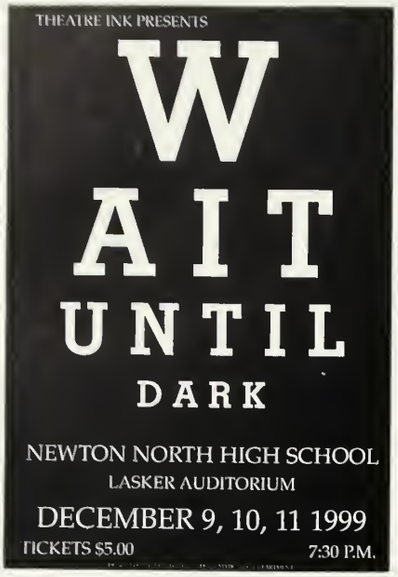

We all know how it feels to be out of place, in the way and underfoot. Add a manipulative daughter-in-law and an ineffectual, yet loving son and you have set the emotional stage for the main character, Mrs. Watts (Allison Krongel) in The Trip to Bountiful by Horton Foote. Still as relevant as it was in 1953 when it was first produced as a television drama, this play had something for everyone to relate to. The son, Ludie (Andrew Holbein), is a character in conflict, unlike his shrewish wife, Jessie Mae (Julia Leisinger), who knows exactly what she wants and how to twist the knife to get it. The play, directed by Inez Dover and staged in the Little Theater, beautifully portrayed the theme of going home with all of its meanings. Supporting cast included Liam Darmody as the Sheriff, Arjana Vizulis as Thelma, and David Leibowitz and Seth Goodman, as train station workers.

e, shrewish and cruel, is happy with herself.

Mrs. Watts wants nothing more than to regain her strength, her dignity and her peace of mind.

"What do I get to break next?" Kate Gorman does a "smashing" job as the rambunctious Gloria, who helps her neighbor Susy, Tess Korobkin.

"I don't know what you're talking about . . ." Dave Shaw and Dan Lolli look suspicious in the dressing room.

A newcomer to the stage, Steve Flusberg, shares a tender moment with veteran actress Tess Korobkin.

"Are you thinking what I'm thinking?" "Mmm . . . roast beef sandwich . . ." Fellow con-men Mike (Phil Korsnes) and Carlino (Danny Rosen) share their thoughts while Harry Roat (Dave Shaw) sits quietly and creepily.

The seniors of the show: Aoife O'Donovan, Phil Korsnes, Sarah Cohan, Abby Stewart, Steve Flusberg, and Liz McQuillan.

"Is it in the safe?" "Lisa?" "I don't know . . . I don't know . . . " Wait Until Dark , the first student directed show of the '99-'00 Theatre Ink season, is the story of a cocaine filled doll, and the scheme of three con-men to recover it from the Greenwich Village apartment of Sam Hendrix and his blind wife Susy. The con men divert Sam from the apartment for an entire day and proceed with an elaborate scheme to make Susy give up the doll. Two of the con-men are killed off by Harry Roat, the head of the operation. With help from her 9 year old neighbor, Gloria, Susy "sees" through their devious plot and ultimately saves herself in a thrilling game of cat and mouse. Wait Until Dark left audiences afraid to walk to their cars alone . . . in the dark.

Wait Until Dark transformed Lasker Auditorium into Susy and Sam Hendrix's Greenwich Village apartment.

From the Directors:

"You'll be sitting on the edge of your noun because you can't stop verbing this book." To BuChuSuhs, Danny's inability to speak becoming contagious and illegal acts with freshmen. "Polishing spoons, polishing spoons" and special window appearances made every day bearable. Edelweiss to everyone. "Amn't I?" Moms - Thanks for the food.

The directors of Wait Until Dark: Sarah Cohan and Abby Stewart.

The Rimers of Eldritch

By Lanford Wilson

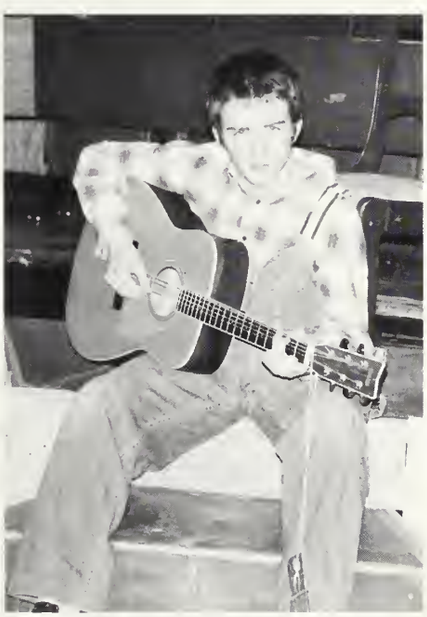

NEWTON NORTH HIGH SCHOOL
LITTLE THEATRE
January 6, 7, 8, 2000

The only prop, a shotgun, ominously appeared on stage throughout the murder mystery The Rimers of Eldritch, which was directed by English teachers Tom Depeter and JoAnne Campbell. Stark scenery with spotlights on speakers increased the sense of foreboding and intrigue that dominated the sixties play by Lanford Wilson. The play is set in the midwestern town of Eldritch and the characters are the sort one would expect to find there: young lovers, the town gossips, the physically and mentally handicapped cared for by others, the sheriff, the town preacher, and, of course, the murdered old man and the murderer. Every actor was on stage throughout the entire play and highlighted when speaking, giving the stage an interrogation room feel. The suspense continued to build as the down-home country values were shown to be in sharp contrast to the reality depicted in the play. A thoroughly satisfying experience, the atmosphere of Rimers lingered in the memories of the audience for days to come.

ura Brodin, the town gossip, suspiciously serves the characters of Eldridtch.

You wouldn't want to mess with Sam Stambler when he strums his guitar!

"Take that!" Jordana Goren slaps Marissa Eisenberg. (Don't worry, it's only pretend.)

"I like your hair." "Yours is nice too!" Jake Brill and Noah Isaacs share a hearty handshake.

Directors: Sonja Rakowski and David Bloom, the Players: Jenna Metson, Meredith Flout Barnes, Daniel Bassichis, Noah Issacs, Sarah Heaton, Jake Brill, Dana Ross and David Liebow

A British comedy? Cyrano in the parlor? Only the writer knew for sure where this comedy was going! Moon Over Buffalo, by Ken Ludwig, was a treat for actors and audience alike, full of fun and confusion. In the play, an actor with a love of drink has the lead in two plays and can never quite remember which one he is in. Stage crew got major cudos for their performance in running a smoke machine, dealing with complex lighting and coping with the mechanical necessities of sword fighting and gunplay (which require sound effects and realistic weaponry). Expertly co-directed by David Bloom and Sonja Rakowski, Moon over Buffalo was sold out every night and had the distinction of being one of the most enthusiastically received plays this year. Moon over Buffalo made a cold winter's night much warmer.

"It's okay Ruth, the wires in your head won't hurt you," Katy Litwak (Bessie) tells a troubled Tamar Avishai (Bessie's Aunt Ruth).

"A Play With Real Life Issues"

Marvin's Room, directed by Alanna Woonteiler and Phil Korsnes went up in the Little Theatre on March 30, 31, and April 1. The dramatic comedy, written by Scott McPherson, is about real characters in real life situations. The play revolves around the relationship of two extremely different sisters. Set near Orlando, Florida, the action begins when one of the sisters, Bessie, discovers that she has leukemia. Bessie calls her sister Lee, whom she hasn't seen in over 18 years, to see if she or either of her two sons would be willing to be bone marrow donors. As the play unfolds, the story reveals some of the emotional entanglements that occur in real life. It goes on to explore the importance of family connections in times of trouble. The audience found themselves laughing one minute and crying the next. This production of Marvin's Room featured many heartfelt performances.

As the day begins, all the freshmen display excited and eager smiles before getting on the stage.

Dan Bloom comments on the freshmen's intriguing position.

Freshman Drama Workshop

Intro into the Art of the Stage

On Saturday, November 13, the very first Newton North freshman drama workshop was "put into play." Freshmen don't have many opportunities to participate in shows and the workshop was designed to give them experience. The day-long workshop was the creation of Mr. Elliott, along with the seniors involved in the theater department. Seniors spent the day working with freshmen on improv games and creative skits, among other things. The day was an overall success and hopes are high for another program next year.

"I think I'll go for a walk outside now..." David Bloom, Phil Korsnes, Jordana Goren, Dana Ross, Sonja Rakowski and Alanna Woonteiler-some of the seniors who helped make the day happen.

Can you tell the seniors from the freshmen?

breaking barriers day

Promoting Awareness and Unit

Watch out world! The Tigers are on the prowl, out to attack the socia barriers that stunt the growth of connections between the people o Newton North. On Thursday, February 10, 2000, Breaking Barriers Da raised our awareness of the isolation of individuals, hopefully promoting a increase in school unity. The issues of unfair discrimination, social barrier and hateful graffiti were confronted.

In the auditorium, audiences of 700 listened to speakers who faced thei peers to voice their concerns about the issues that plague North. In respons to the speeches, students had the opportunity to speak out during an ope microphone forum. Student moderators circulated around the audience t give others the chance to express their feelings.

Classroom discussions of smaller groups were more in depth; they ensure a more intimate environment. Students discussed topics dealing wit graffiti, the discomfort of stereotyped individuals and possible solutions t problems. Stories of personal barriers were shared. Tears were shed Moments of awkward silence lurked. Laughter rang throughout. Th opportunity to dig deeper into our emotions was provided and som students took advantage of it.

Social barriers were broken on the spot during activities that mixed stu dents from all grade levels, racial backgrounds, ethnic heritages and phys cal types. Games that required touching and one-on-one communicatio soon led to a newfound comfort within the group. Have You Ever, Killer, an Duck Duck Goose were among the many games that were played.

The result of the work done by Leadership 2000 and Jubilee Singers was major success. The people of North were given an opportunity to learn abou themselves, about each other, and about invisible barriers. People felt clos to each other and many new friendships began. Tiger Pride truly soared.

The day was charged with change. A large percentage of students exited the school feeling bewildered, relieved and ecstatic. Thanks to the hard work of the Leadership 2000 class, students no longer feel that they stand alone in this school.

Live from the Little Theater, it's Newton North, uncensored, uncut, and unbelievable! Acoustic Night was, in a word, phenomenal. Students and adults performed with heart and soul. There were tunes by artists such as Dave Matthews Band, Simon and Garfunkle, Ani DiFranco, and Kermit the Frog. All the seats were filled and some members of the audience were forced to sit in the aisles (including me). This night of music was organized by guidance counselor Mary Lou Petkewich and all proceeds benefited Amnesty International.

Main Street: Newton North's Runway

From flare jeans to puffy vests, leather jackets to messenger bags, our fashions are always changing. Every year students walk the halls sporting the latest. Students' styles range from athletic gear to their own crazy creations... one girl even sported a stuffed monkey as part of her outfit this year!. Clothing has always been a reflection of personality, just read a few t-shirts and see!

Like friendship, the overalls of Lindsay Jacobson and Becky Franc are timeless.

Karla Galvez and Hilary Jones show that fashion can be comfortable.

Matt Vinditti and Mike Iarossi show that, forwards or backwards, it doesn't really matter as long as y have a hat.

Stylish Myika Daughtery wears a matching lime green puff jacket and sweatshirt.

Jeena Hatton and Natalie Watkins keep warm in style during Ms. Sakata's math class.

ets, hats and hugs keep Michael Leonard, Troy Brooks, and Kaleena hel warm in the winter.

3/4 length shirts, a messenger bag and shell-toe Adidas make Samantha Caan and Nicole McCarthy two very stylish juniors.

ıy Duffy knows you can never go wrong in Newton h gear.

Dressed up or down, flare jeans are always a great choice. Christine Carter and Stephanie Golden strike a pose.

MCAS

Much Concern over Academic Success

"The danger in taking the MCAS too seriously is that we put pressure on children to perform better for the sake of a test." -Deborah Meier, principal Mission Hills School, Boston

After hours and hour of grueling testing, the sophomores of the cl;ass of 2001 were exhausted from the writing and thinking and low on energy. The class officers planned a barbecue to re-energize. Hundreds of starving students piled out of the building and onto the cafeteria patio where they were met with hot dogs, hamburgers, ice cream and fruit. Well-fed students were then able to relax with friends and forget their tiresome days.

"I didn't expect the barbecue to be this poplular! It makes me feel like the work we did hasn't gone unappreciated," said Noel Tedla.

Class president Lucia Tseng was also pleased with the turn out at the barbecue, "We were really happy to be able to reward ourselves for all our hard work." Though the majority of students did not do as well as the school had hoped, some felt that it was not the fault of the students or the teachers, but the failure of the test to accurately assess student knowledge.

"North is a school known for its academics," said Tia Lites. "It shouldn't be judged by this test, but by what goes on in the classroom".

Relieved after a day's worth of over load, Cassa r. Benes and Sarah Lewis take a break from eatir t unwind.

High on life after the MCAS... Dave Cashman and Andrew Shriro look a little dazed after hours of testing.

Which is better coke or sprite? Alicia Hussain and Helen Fassil go for the answer to an easy question.

id they run out of food?" Robin Westlund, Claire Inskeep, Ronnie Kahana, Vanessa Cedrone, Daunielle ardi all try to get the last piece of watermelon.

Fatigue can create all sorts of illusions. Is that a GQ model or Chris Rohrig? You decide.

"It's pretty obvious there is a big challenge in front of us." -Governor Paul Cellucci at does MCAS stand for? "Many Close Amigos Smile."

Arjana Vizulis and Tamar Avishai console each other as Paul Karpenko finds confort in a hot dog.

Myika Daughtry and Tia Lites are relieved and full of good food after their escape from the testing room.

Making A Splash! But She's Not All Wet....
Kydani Dover

" The only reason I get up at four a.m. is because I have a connection with the water,"said Kydani Dover. "When I don't swim I feel lost." Kydani began swimming at 5-years-old taking lessons at Boston University and by the age of ten she was swimming competitively. Swimming became second nature.

Now, at 16, Kydani trains with Bernal's Gator Swim Club, a United States swimming program. Swimming at the club's highest level, led by Olympic coach Joseph Bernal, she hopes to make a national standard. Kydani keeps a tight schedule, swimming twice a day, once in the early morning and again at night. Though Kydani sometimes feels the stress of swimming and school work, there are also advantages. She has had the opportunity to travel the United States, to places such as Las Vegas, Texas, Florida, and Hawaii.

Kydani gives her parents the major credit for her success. "My parents have to get up with me; they go to my meets, they're very supportive." With her parents' encouragment and hard work, Kydani has broken four school records with the Newton North Girl's Swim Team. Kydani is not the only athlete in her family: her mother and father have both been coaches and both her older sisters are blessed with athletic abilities.

Kydani's love for the water gives her motivation to continue. For Kydani swimming is not just a sport; it has taught her discipline and responsibility. In the future she hopes to continue swimming throughout college and dreams to someday attend the Olympics. Kydani has proved that with determination and strength goals can be achieved. " Anything is possible! When I started swimming I never thought I'd get this far but I did."

StResSed out!!!!

With SAT's, junior theses, and college plans, Junior year can be the most rigorous and important time in a student's career. Since many students believe that Junior year can decide your future, this can be a stressful period. During the hectic year, students rarely have time to relax. When the pressures of school begin to add up, over-worked brains can go on overload, causing both headaches and stress. Everyone needs a break! For some students, it's escaping to a tranquil place or being surrounded by friends and laughter. Juniors all get rid of tension in different ways.

Sweets always cure Helen Fassil's stress.

Napping in the library is a good break for Ellen Ulyanov during the day.

Doing homework during school allows Natalie Apsell to spend less time stressin' out and more time chillin' out.

ing to good friends always helps Brian Wilmont and Dan Swire feel relaxed.

n Bailey, Tom Guisti, and Declan Healy practice what they preach.

Savvy Sophomores are anything but sophomoric!

Discussing a serious topic "under the sun" of Humanitatis, Alex Goldstein, Merry Rutrick, and Marissa Labate show their intellectual side.

"Number 2 pencils only..." Miriam Lazawatsky prepares for this year's MCAS testing.

"Ask not what your school can do for you, but what you can do for your school..." Dan Bassichis, class President, directs the three other class officers.

"Did you buy your yearbook yet?" Ben Kaufman and Max Tedaldi have a brief discussion in between classes on the importance on keeping up with school events.

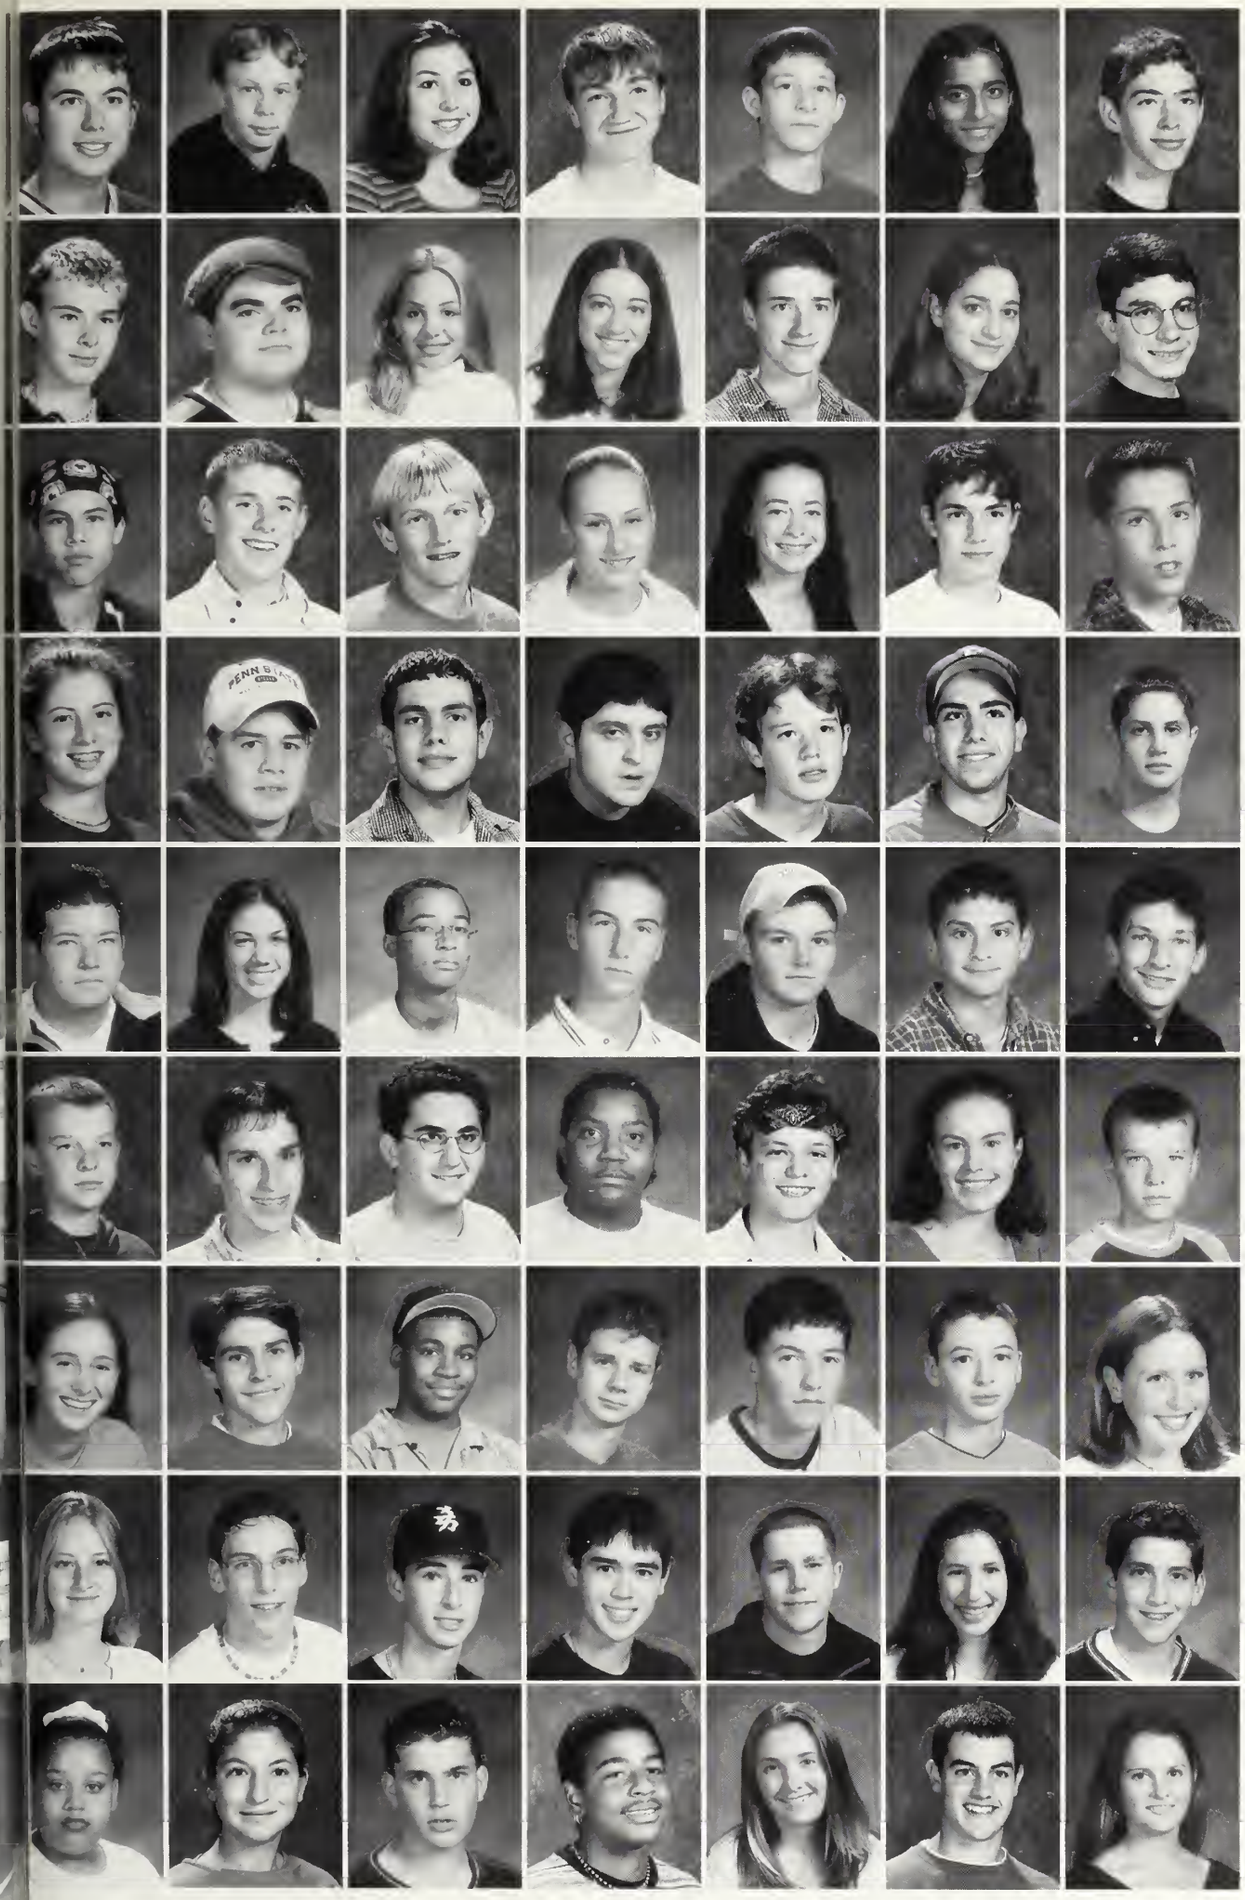

"Calculators are god's gift t man..." Marissa Sherman attempt to use her TI-83 during math clas Sophomores have done great things this year: hosting dances, receiving high PLAN test scores, selling winter hats. The sophomores are taking over the school.

The Sophomore Class started off the year with a good deed. We volunteered to run a face-painting-booth at the Newton Harvest Fair. While painting faces and giving out cookies, we helped give back to the community. Later, we sponsored a Sophomore Class Raffle, which was not only fun but a great fundraiser as well. Cool prizes went to numerous winners and we had a free ice cream sundae party afterwards for all Sophomores attending. This was a great success for everyone especially our tummies. We started the awesome Tiger Pride trend of the paw print hats, which not only showed our outstanding school spirit, but also our ability to pull together as a class. In February, we hosted the all school Valentine's Day Dance. There were spectacular decorations and everyone had a blast. Finally came the Sophomore Sleepover, with an incredible range of activities from swimming to dancing to watching movies.

All in all, Sophomore year was fantastic because the members of our class are fantastic. Though we may be underclassmen, the Class of 2002 is taking things in stride. We have already proven our potential for greatness.

"Stop looking over my shoulder..." Claire Collins and Naomi Forman try to work together on their group test without interference.

On Broadway Route to...

)id you ever dream of acting professionally? Well, lk to Will Cohen who has done both! He recently ppeared in She Loves Me at the Lyric Stage Company of Boston - Boston's Off Broadway. He played ıe role of Arpad, an eager delivery boy who has reams to better himself. The show was headed by)me of Boston's finest theatre professionals and arred seventeen Boston area actors. The plot re-)lves around a small parfumerie in Hungary dur-g the 1930's. Georg and Amalia, employees of laraczek's parfumerie, fall in love via love letters. owever, Georg and Amalia grow to hate each her in real life. The play examines love-hate lationships. It is not until the end of the story that ey discover they have been writing to each other.

Will Cohen tips his hat as he sings "good morning" to his co-worker.

Aloha

Sara Krulewich, Matt Cohen, Jeffrey Fisher, Rebecca Farmer, Daniel Dicamillo, Lauren Alpert, Emily Marmorek and Courtney Alpert party all night during the Freshman Boat Cruise.

On Saturday, May 22, 1999, the S.S. Minnow set sail from the tropical port of Boston Harbor on a three hour cruise (alright, so it wasn't the SS Minnow). To the sounds of music and merriment, our class of 2002, together with our committee of volunteers, created a paradise of fun. While many of us watched the sun set, waiting to admire the stars, others filled the night with laughter and dancing. Some unfortunate cruisers suffered the effects of over-partying and got "sea-sick." Tired yet satisfied, we headed back to Newton North at 10:00pm. The Freshmen boat cruise was an exciting event that highlighted our first year in high school.

"Man, I feel like a woman..." Ariel Samuelson, Lucy Joffe, Marissa Sherman, Joanna Peterson rock the boat.

Christopher Ellerbe, Steven Marrow, Sandra Henriquez, Viene Dargon, Benjamin Bullard, Nakisha Lewis, Ralphael Bolton, David Bell, Sara Khan

Breaking Barriers of the Heart... Understanding the Meaning of Valentine's Day

-A Heartfelt Response from All Grade Levels-

Danielle Crosby, Helen Temesghen and Rebecca Manning show their signs of love.

Austin Fossey and Eleanor Muise share a hug.

Emily Kadish knows that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach as she entices James McLaughlin with baked goods.

Stephanie Golden, Mary Leshchiner, and Yulia Bratnikova enjoy the sweets of Valentin Day.

Have you ever wondered where St. Valentine's Day originated?

♥ On February 14, AD. 270, St. Valentine was beaten with clubs and then beheaded. He was martyred for refusing to give up Christianity. That very day, by coincidence, was devoted to "love lotteries" and "fine feathered friendships."

♥ Another belief is that throughout Europe during the Middle Ages, birds began to mate on February 14.

♥ In past English literature, there are frequent references to February 14 as sacred to lovers.

♥ On Valentine's Day, the rose has symbolized love. By rearranging the letters in "rose," you get "Eros," the god of Love. A tradition in our school is selling roses, which the freshman class organized this year. The arrangement of leaves in a bouquet has a history of meaning; it represents hope and a promise of fulfillment. A flower slanting to the right means "thou" or "thee" and one sloping to the left means "I" or "me." A laurel leaf twisted around a bouquet means "I am."

The white rose that symbolizes friendship balance the shoulders of Courtney Alpert.

oo any admirers' roses would make any man smile. Dan nstein is no exception.

Small but meaningful roses for Ashley Jefferson and Mike Dailey, and that rose-shaped lollipop looks good!

Karen Alroy has romantic thoughts about rowing down the Charles River.

How do You See the Big "V"?

A survey

ebruary 14, Valentine's Day, has become a holiday: a day for giving and receiving, for getting chocolate and ses from crushes, boyfriends, girlfriends, or just plain friends. In light of this, the freshmen class thought up a rvey to see what people think Valentine's Day is all about, and to see if they took the holiday seriously.

Here are a few thoughts from Ms. Carpenter's homeroom:
1.) What do you feel is the ideal date for you, on Valentine's Day?
"Just spending time at home with each other." "A romantic dinner at McDonald's. (J/K)." "Going to a movie, and hanging out afterwards."
2.) What qualities do you look for in a "significant other"?

"Nice smiles, eyes, build, hair, and face." "Nice, funny, sweet, sensitive, good-personality, and laid back."
3.) What do you like about Valentine's Day? Why?
"The chocolate, hugs, candy, and it's fun." "Sexual harassment is excusable."
4.) What don't you like about Valentine's Day? Why?
"Some people don't have someone to spend it with." "It's only one day of the year." "If you don't have a partner you feel lonely." "We don't get the day off." "It's cold." "It's only one day of the year." "It's just an excuse for your girlfriend to get mad at you if you don't get her anything, an excuse for her to demand presents." "The colors are yucky and the day is too schmaltzy."
5) Do you care about Valentine's Day? Why or why not?
"Don't care! Whatever we can do on Valentine's Day we can do on any other day." "Yes, I care! It's a chance to get more intimate with that special someone." "Sure, why not?" "No! It's not a real holiday because you don't get the day off." "If I had a sweetheart, I 'd care."
6.) What happened to you this Valentine's Day?
You can fill this one in yourself... and hope that next year will be even better!

othberg shares a warm moment with Eli.

Becca Herskovitz and Nathan Dooley-Hayes take time out to appreciate their friendship.

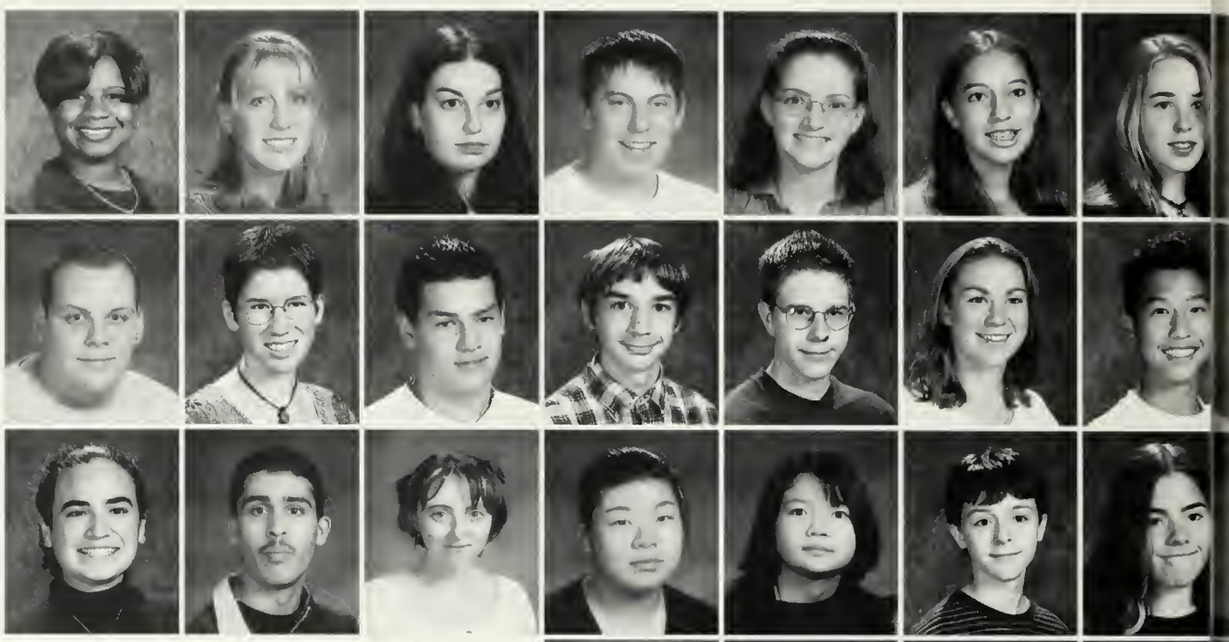

Talya Moked and Gen Jarek compare their roses as Dave Avery makes his own Valentine's Day comment.

"Builders of a new world..."

A Salute to Reverend Martin Luther King, Jr.

Each year, the English department sponsors the Martin Luther King, Jr. Essay Contest, which honors the sophomores who write the most powerful essays about heroes they believe embody the spirit of Dr. King. This year, there was a tie for second place between Nick Carter and Justin Oppenheimer. Carter wrote about Megan Christopher, a city lawyer who represents low-income victims of domestic violence. Carter wrote that Ms. Christopher embodies the spirit of Dr. King because she tries to "blot out the ugly marks of injustice" that confront her.

Justin Oppenheimer wrote about his mother, who suffered from a rare form of ovarian cancer. Oppenheimer said that she had inspired him with her "tremendous courage and strength", while faced with "the shadow of death." However, while King's voice was lost when he was assassinated, Oppenheimer's mother has prevailed over her illness, inspiring others never to give up.

This year's first place winner, Sarabeth Berman, raised the issues of inequality and injustice, against which Dr. King fought so passionately. She wrote about Craig Keilburger of Toronto, Canada, who founded a group called "Free the Children", which focuses on international human rights violations against children. "Both inspire us, both challenge us and both dare us to be builders of a new world, a world where civility rules," wrote Berman of both Dr. King and Keilburger.

The True Meaning of M.C.A.S

M.C.A.S....it's the terror that lurks in the dark, makes you go crazy with anxiety, sleeps during freshmen year, and wakes up around tenth grade to bite you. Constantly being reminded of our pending fate, we freshmen must accept the reality of the M.C.A.S. Being used as guinea pigs, we are the first class for whom it is mandatory to pass the M.C.A.S. in order to graduate from high school. We asked this year's freshman class what they thought the true meaning of M.C.A.S was, and the results are in. Here are some of their responses:

Most Criticizing Annoying Standards
Mad Cruel Assessment of Students
SCAM (switch the letters around)
Means for Creating A Salary (it all makes sense now!)
Massachusetts Children Against School (they are now)
(It causes...) Many Countless Arrests and Suspensions
More Candy and Soda (a good reward!)

"Frosh"- It seems that, over time, the term "frosh" has picked up a negative meaning. However, what does "frosh" really mean? Where did it come from? The title "frosh" is a unisex version of "freshmen." It originated when women began pursuing higher education at colleges and high schools, and there was a need to change the male-oriented "freshmen" to a more politically correct term.

Rules don't apply- One of the best advantages of being a freshmen is the "I'm just a Freshman" line. As the "babies" of the school, we appear to be ignorant of the rules and the way things work. Being a freshman is a great excuse... a way to get out of the messes we create.

Charlie's Angels are back as Jessie Hollander and Kathr Norcross pose as the famed movie stars

Eighty-four- In 1984, the first freshman class entered NNHS. Ninth graders were moved from the middle schools to the high schools as a result of a decline in enrollment in the Newton Public Schools. The Class of 2004 is the sixteenth freshmen class at Newton North.

Sandwiched in by Sabrina Fanger and Juli Brown, J.J. Molé is one happy guy

Speaking out- "I know, up on top you are seeing great sights, but down at the bottom we, too, should have rights" -Dr. Seuss. Although some people have the false impression that freshmen are small and unimportant, this years ninth grade has really made a name for itself. Landing leading roles in plays, taking action in many clubs, and excelling on varsity sports teams, we are hardly insignificant.

Happy to be here- Unfazed by the rush of high school life, we wake up in the morning ready to start a new day. All around us are new opportunities; new people to meet, places to discover, and obstacles to overcome. It's the time to have fun and enjoy our teenage years, but at the same time we realize that the decisions we make will effect us in the long run. We are the future and we will survive!

20 Ways to "Spot a Freshman"

We can't escape the miserable fact that we are freshmen, and nothing but time is going to change that. So just get over it and enjoy the ride!!! We are different, there's no disputing it. So here are several methods to " Spot a Freshman"

1. They take 20 minutes to open their lockers
2. They always seem to be dropping things in the hall and running into people
3. They're always on time for class or have a note if they're late
4. They try to look cool hanging out on Main Street
5. They try not to look lost, yet they always are
6. They always listen attentively to the announcements
7. They're so worried about college, even though it's four years away
8. How stupid they look with their big, fat L.L. Bean backpacks
9. They have to take the bus to school
10. They still care about what other people think of them
11. They try so hard as amateurs to get into plays with professionals
12. They get so worried over anything and everything
13. How special they feel playing on the NO CUT, freshmen sport teams
14. How much Tiger Pride they truly possess
15. They attempt to be different, but end up the same
16. How excited they get over freshmen lunch
17. How they try to act older and miserably fail
18. They are always afraid to break rules or contradict their elders
19. They think they have more experience than life itself
20. How young they look, act, and, no matter what... how young they are

REASONABLE Regrets

At the end of senior year, many seniors look back to when they were freshmen and are regretful of those dreams a goals that they never made a reality. Instead of letting us innocent freshmen fall into the same trap, some seniors t us a few things to do at North before it's too late...

Learn a foreign language, you never know when it may come in handy... ¿Donde está el baño?

Make friends with your teachers, you never know if they may show up on Who Wants To Be A Millionaire ...

Get on the good side of upperclassmen, you never know when you may need a lift somewhere...

Take electives over study halls, come senior year nothing is better than 10 frees.

Get involved with everything; it looks really good on your college application.

Paint a mural on the wall. Once it's there you'll be immortalized.

Above all, don't create barriers, after they're up, they're the hardest things to bring down.

Who Rocks the Party

The fall sports teams started the year with a bang. Most of the them made it into the state tournaments. Coaches, players, and fans were all excited and full of Tiger Pride, hot to show their support for their student athletes.

A major highlight of the season was the never to be forgotten moment when the Girls' Soccer Team captured the state title. The game was very intense and the girls worked hard while the fans stood behind them, cheering them on. The Boys' Soccer Team also made it far into the MIAA State Tournament. Losing to Needham, the team placed third in the state.

The Field Hockey team also had a strong year. Losing in the North Sectional semi-finals, the girls put up a strong fight and gave it their all. Ending the season as the Bay State League champions, third in the Class A's, and fifth in the state, the Girls' Cross Country Team clearly ended the season on a high. Commenting on the team, senior and captain Abigail Noble said, "Running with this team has been an exceptional experience. Our team had a collectively positive attitude and worked together at every meet. For those who believe cross country isn't a team sport, we prove otherwise." The Golf team also worked hard and ended up third in their league.

That Rocks the Body?

Tiger Pride...Success in the fall of '99

Senior Claire Putzeys describes her experience on the Girls' Volleyball team, "I have never been a part of a team that so greatly exemplified the true meaning of what it is to be a part of a team and the value of sportsmanship. Every second of the season was thrilling and fulfilling. This season was about so much more than just volleyball: it was about a team that understood what it was like to give it their all, mentally, physically, and emotionally. This is something that I think few teams really understand." The girls' teamwork and support led them to the regional semi-finals, where they unfortunately lost.

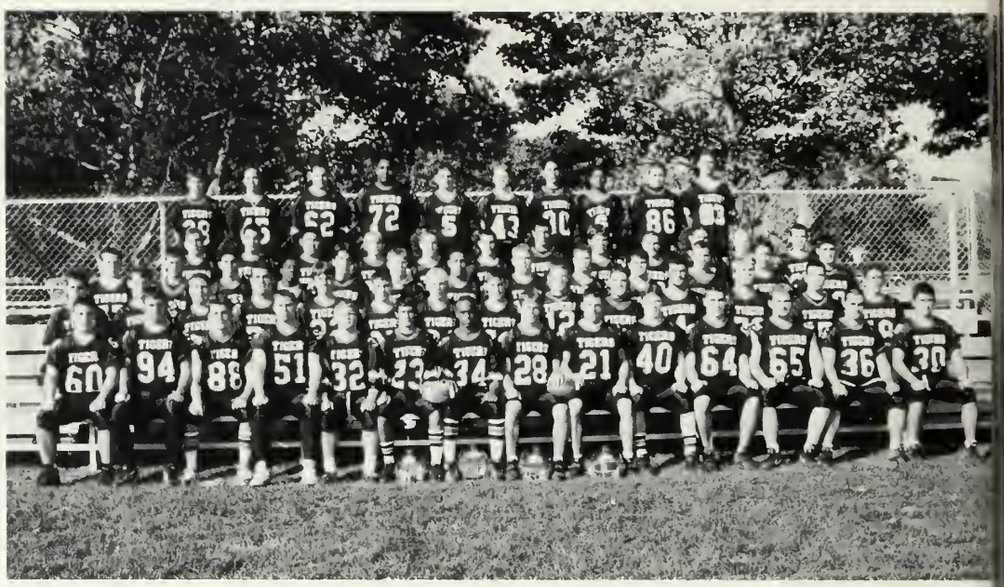

The Cheerleaders were successful in competition as well as in cheering the Football team. The team placed first and second in the Top Gun competition. The Football team also had a very exciting season. Losing only three games in the regular season, the team was able to successfully make it to their first Superbowl in over thirty years. Fighting against the strong Bellrica team, the Tigers fought hard. Despite their final loss, the Football team showed everyone that they wouldn't stop without a fight!

The Newton North Varsity Football Team

WINNING "Streak"?

Aaron McGoveron is ready to pounce on his opponents

The Tigers have come a long way. Having won over 75% of their games, Tiger Football has become one of the best teams in their division which is a vast improvement over thier past seasons. No longer are they held down by their losing seasons, the Tigers have arrived. Led by their captains, Keith Truitt, Ben Megrian, Tom Dargon, and Justin Williams Tiger football have raised their caliber of performance. The team was also accompanied with major contributions by thier other seniors, Steve Walters, Phil Rashkovetsky, Jon Davis, Terri Rowe, Nate McConarty, Matt Colantonio, Aaron MacGovern, Ryan Gallagher, Alex Ballo, Steve McCarthy, Frank Scaltreto, Carl Fleisher, Jesse Cutler, and Mike Paquette. Coach Capodilupo has turned the team around, never giving up hope in what he knew was always in each of them, a winning team. Now that the Tigers have changed their path which led to a 7 game winning "streak" they have set the standard for future teams. For those who lead the team next year, you have large shoes to fill.

This season volleyball began their journey to the championship as they had years before: starting strong. The team, full of talented players, never lacked in times of need. Claire Putzeys registered 10 kills in one game alone and Melissa DeCew's defense pulled the team through many times, along with Ashley Knapp's perfect sets. Though they competed against the toughest teams in the league, the Tigers kept their minds focused on winning. Seniors who contributed to their many wins were Claire Putzeys, Melissa DeCew, Lori Hill, Ashley Knapp, and Jill Hatcher. The Tigers unfortunately ended their trip to the championship in round three. Throughout their season the Tigers kept their spirit, and minds on the game, and always knew how to work as a team. Though their trip to the championship ended quickly, the Tigers will never be a team to fail on the court.

Lori Hill and Annie Rabinautch rest on the sideline while they bang the bleachers to cheer on their team.

We DON'T just cheer ... We COMPETE

The 1999 Fall Cheerleading Squad

As a new coach at NNHS, I am very thankful that I have had five exceptional seniors to show me the ins and outs of life and Cheerleading here at North. In all of my years as a coach I have never had such a difficult time determining two out of the five to lead our team as captians. Through it all they have each showed me they know how to step up when needed and observe patiently from afar. As the years pass and they reflect on thier time here at North, I hope they will still exemplify the same leadership, commitment, and, success in all they endeavor.

"A true leader has the confidence to stand alone, the courage to make tough decisions, and the compassion to listen to the needs of others. He does not set out to be a leader, but becomes one by the quality of his actions and the integrity of his intent. In the end, leadres are much like easgles...they don't flock, you find them one at a time."

Women on the Move

The women's sports program at Newton High began before the turn of the 20th century. At that time calisthenics was the only sport and it was "played" by young women in ankle-length wool skirts, matchin hats, and jackets buttoned up to the collar. The school changed with the times, however, and soon, wome were lettering in both basketball and in field hockey. By the 1920's, women played ice hockey, and in the fifties fencing and archery were offered. Today, North's female students enjoy everything from Skiing to Ultimat Frisbee, and they're playing harder than ever before.

He shoots, scores!

The boys' basketball team this year surprised many as they came out early with a string of victories. But even more surprising was that they just kept on winning. With only one loss in the season, the boys clenched the Bay State Carey Division title and are on their way to the State Tournament. Led by captains Dan Murnane and Phil Riffe, the team this year is unstoppable. The Tigers were led by the outside shooting of leading scorer Phil Riffe and brothers Ami and Matt Lyons. They had a strong inside game led by Alex Plaisted, Robert Taylor and Rodney Bennett. They make their highly ranked and skillful opponents look like fools on the court as they consistently destroy all competition.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL STRIVES FOR A WINNING SEASON

Supporting its fellow team members, the Tiger bench cheers "Defense!"

This year's primary goal for the Girls' Basketball team was to "improve its shooting," said coach Allyson Toney. As the season progressed, the girls worked hard on their athleticism, causing their shooting to improve. Led by co-captians Melissa DeCew and Julie Chyten-Brennan, as well as Vanessa Cedrone and Stephanie Molé, the tigers grew to a major force in the Bay State League. With many new players the Tigers worked together to form a true team, on and off the court. Many seniors contributed to the winning season: Melissa DeCew, Julie Chyten-Brennan, Stephanie Molé, Abigail Noble, Carrie Henry, Emily Gordon, Jane Duket, and Elizabeth Beaton. Alongside these seniors, the underclassmen completed this team: Vanessa Cedrone, Rachel Ritchie, Marissa Sherman, Ariel Samuelson, Annie Rabinovitch, Sarah Rabinovitch, Beth Goldberg and Sarah Sedgwick. The Girl's Basketball team fulfilled their task, went to the next level, and became a force to be reckoned with.

88 girls tried out for the Ice Hockey Team in its second year...what year was that again? Would you believe 1922! (Newtonite, 1922) Girls played competitively on Bullough's Pond then, and the tradition of excellence continues today. Now in its second-second year, our current team continues to work on fundamentals, said Coach Karen McCabe. Full of team spirit and drive, the girls made a good showing this season. The Tigers played so well that they earned their first-ever state tournament berth and travelled to the semi-finals. Mariana Creatini, Kate Reardon, and Jane Claflin were the team's top scorers. Their defensive zone coverage and their ability to get rebounds improved greatly over the season.

Led by their captains, Jesse Sayles, Gabe Greenberg, and Mike Boucher, the team was determined to do better than previous years. Ending thier regular season as 7-0, the boys led their league. Several of the team members attended the MIAA Class A. They were: Mike Boucher for the 1,000 and 4 x 400 relay with Aaron Funk, Gabe Greenberg, and Sean Herlehy; Matt Arcovio, Justin Williams, and Ben Kwasnik for the shotput; Luke Montrose, and Williams for the dash; Tyler Newman for the mile; Doug Norton, and Aaron Funk for the 600;and Blankley for the high jump. The boys track team over did it this year with their overwhelming success. Once again, the Tigers went above and beyond.

From Track to Track, the Tigers are the Mack!

The Girls' Indoor Track team did phenomonally well this winter, finishing the season with an unexpected 7-0 record, said head coach Joe Tranchita. The Tigers' impressive dual meet performance clinched their 11th Bay State League title in the last 12 years, giving them an overall record of 62-2. In their regular season closer, the girls defeated arch-rivals Needham in a meet that Tranchita called "one of the best team efforts I've seen since I've been at North." Several members of the team qualified for the MIAA Class A state meet, where Kate Hobbs placed 3rd in the high jump, Liz Magruder placed 5th in the shotput, Tara Murphy placed 4th in the two mile, and Melissa Martin placed 5th in the two mile. Murphy and Martin were named league all-stars for their performances in the distance events. The indoor season was an extremely successful one for the Tigers, who did "amazingly well," according to Hobbs, a tri-captain with Claire Putzeys and Jenna Spackman.

"Sittin' on top of the world" Marina Oliveira prepares to land in the long jump pit. This was the first season that long jump was included in Bay State Conference indoor dual meets, although it was an unscored event.

STATE CHAMPIO

The boys' Gymnastics team is going strong and in the running for their fourth state title. "We worked hard to get new moves into our routines," said senior Steve Walters, a quad-captain with Roman Khitrik, Jaime Northrup, and Jacky Wu. According to coach Steve Chan, the boys' hard work has paid off and has put them in a position to retain their title. "The floor and vault have been our strongest events ...and have made up for areas where we're not as strong, like high bar or pommel horse," said Chan. Overall, the coach praised the contributions of his three senior and one junior captains.

This winter, the Men's Swim Team turned in several impressive performances and sent more swimmers to the Sectionals than at any time in recent years. The Tigers were led by their many returning seniors, including captains Mike Bradley and Peter Frantz. Other major contributors were junior tri-captain Andrew Sharpin and newcomer Ethan Treat, who each qualified for five individual events in the state meet, as well as re-writing school records. According to head coach Chris "Doc" Jones, the boys' major strengths were their several outstanding individuals and an overall depth that most other teams could not compete with. Most members earned personal records throughout the season and many qualified for the Sectionals meet, including seniors Steve McCarthy and Jake Broder-Fingert in the 50 freestyle; Jay Roudebush in diving; and Bradley in the 50, 100, and 200 freestyle events.

Athletic Training -- what is it? Athletic Training might be better labeled as "Sports Medicine." This program was first started by George Jessup around the 1960's. Newton High was one of the first schools to hire a full-time trainer for its athletic program. Created to "prevent and care for any athletic injuries" that may occur during any of the sports season, the program has grown over the years into a necessary and much valued part of the athletic program.

Although small, the program has made remarkable improvements. There are now two full time Athletic Trainers: Mr. McAndrews (during the Fall and Spring) and Mr. Giusti (during the Winter and Spring). Also the program has adopted many devoted student athletic trainers. The students' role is to assist with the bandaging, treating and "wrapping" of the injured and vulnerable body parts belonging to our precious athletes. Trainers change every season; these pages show our winter trainers.

Of Sound Mind and Body....Teachers Who Coach

Teaching and coaching go hand in hand, said housemaster, English teacher and football coach Peter Capodilupo. "The best teachers are coaches, " Capodilupo said. "You are able to address students' specific needs better when you have that background. Coaching is like having an open classroom. There are rules to follow in English, just as there are in football." Cappy (as he is affectionately known by everyone at school) said that there is a cycle of achievement that occurs through both teaching and coaching. " The better a student or athlete gets, the more effort they are willing to put in. More effort translates into more confidence and higher achievement." According to Cappy, coaches have an advantage over teachers "because they are building on an interest or a passion. He went on to say, "English is required, football isn't. The athlete is also able to express himself in a physical way that the student can't. All senses are brought into play in the outdoor classroom. When teachers teach and coach in the same builing, they have an advantage because they can see individuals in different lights. However, teaching out of the building is a disadvantage. Even though they do the same things, those teachers are not privy to the heart and soul of the school."

Two Jobs in one Year... A New Beginning

Stephanie Bower, first year English teacher and Lacrosse coach is part of a dynasty here at North. Having been a graduate from North and an all-star Lacrosse player, Bower has returned to not only teach but to take over as head coach of girl's Lacrosse. Both her and her brother, Mike, have returned to North to help give back to the athletic department what it gave them throughout high school and into their college years. Bower said that being a teacher at the school only helped her a little in getting the job as a head coach. "It helps to be in the building because you are in constant contact with the athletic department," said Bower. When asked if she enjoys teaching or coaching more, she responded that both are very different, but similar skills can be applied to both positions. "When you're coaching, you're teaching and when you're teaching, you're coaching," she said. She tries to push both her students and players to the best of their ability. Bower is hopeful that she will bring new life to the Lacrosse team, which she has also brought to her classroom.

Between Seasons, To Each His Own.

When the three-week period between the winter and spring seasons arrives, students are forced to become creative for entertainment. Many turn to alternative sports. From rugby to skateboarding, from sleeping to eating, the self-organized sports lack the structure of the varsity variety. Who knows, in the future a varsity letter might be offered for playing caps.

Despite the late cuts, our final deadline, and unavailability of pertinent information regarding Spring sports, we are still including a Spring sports section. However, pages 281 through 288 are missing from the book due to time constraints. We will focus on seniors and attempt to make projections as to the outcome of this season.

CHICKS with Sticks

The Tigers have high hopes for the 2000 season. Carrying on the tradition of success that has been built over the years, the Tigers look to capture the Bay State title by beating their biggest rival, Needham. The Tigers look to go deep in the tournament, eventually winning the State Championship. Led by senior captains Debbie Mendel and Jenny Rossman, the Tigers will also look to the play of seniors Abby Ritchie, Alana Kapust, Rebecca Gardner, Jenny Knipe and goalkeeper Michelle Siegal. Juniors Emily Jacobs-Vassar and Eliza Rosenbaum will be contributors as well. The depth and desire of the Tigers, inspired by first year coach Stephanie Bower, will be the key to their success this season.

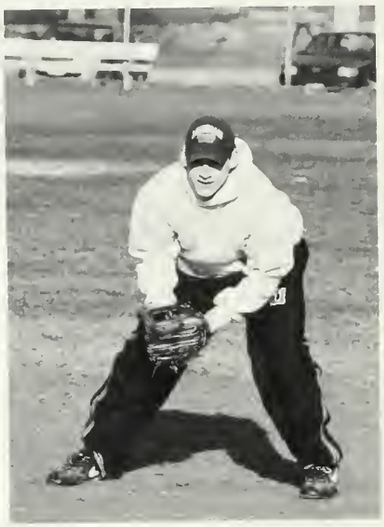

In the Crane Position. Ben Megrian has other hobbies beside baseball. Karate anyone?

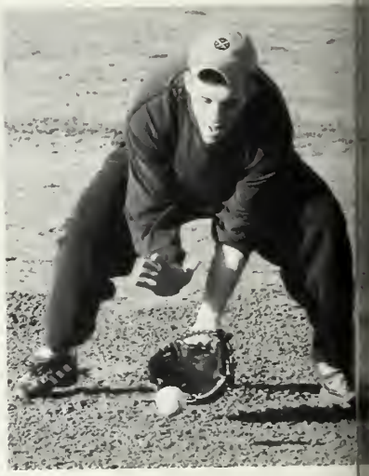

Tough Guys. Steve McCarthy, Ben Megrian, Tom Dargon, Andrew Coletti, Matt Colantonio and Steve Nar are looking to intimidate this season.

"For The Love of the Game"

Seniors will play a major role in baseball's success this season. The Tigers finished the regular season 10-10 last year and won their last three games of the season to make the tournament. Leading the Tigers in pitching will be Tom Dargon and Ben Megrian. Position players who will boost the men in batting are Andrew Coletti, Steve Nardelli and Andrew Shriro, who led the Bay State's Carey Division in hitting with a .452 average last year.

"A LEAGUE OF Their Own"

Softball has six returning varsity players, Vanessa Cedrone, shortstop; Lauren Gallagher, pitcher; Emily Gordon, first baseman; Lori Hill, catcher; Tara Minaker, outfielder; and Nicky Quinn, outfielder. According to Gordon, the team will be inexperienced at three of the infield positions and will have to adjust to new coach Lauren Baugher. Softball hopes to improve on last year's first round exit from the post-season. Cedrone and Hill are returning league all-stars.

Match Makers

Hopes high, ready to work, men's tennis wants to move closer to State Tournament finals this year. With a good start last year, the team was 14-4 before the dreaded Needham game where they lost in the third round of the Tournament. The match against Needham has been a highlight and team focus for the past three years, according to co-captain Ian MacKenzie. "The team only lost 3-2 and the two victories were come-from-behind. It was a crushing defeat, but it was also thrilling." The team will lean on its seniors, Pete Epstein and co-captains Matt Cotton and Ian MacKenzie as well as returning Bay State Conference all-stars Luke and Max Tedaldi.

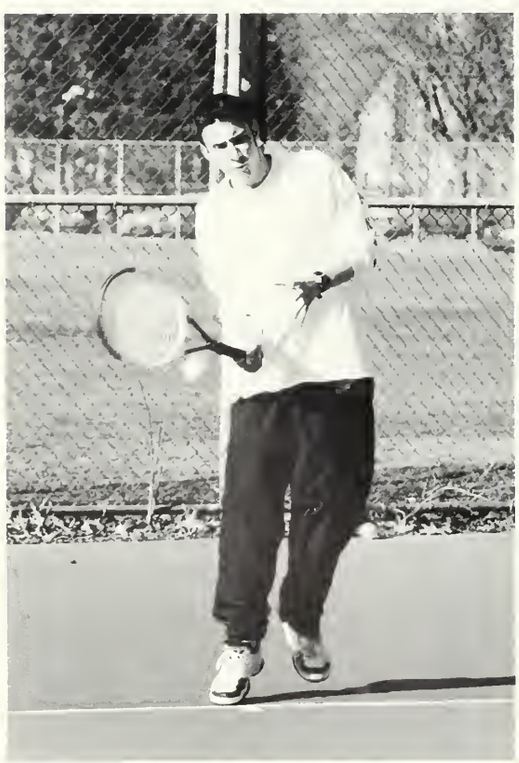

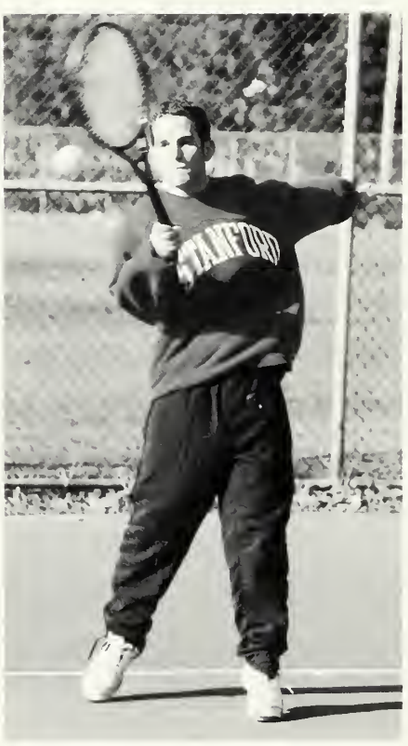

"Twin power..." Max Tedaldi attempts to return a serve to his twin, Luke.

What's Love Got To Do With It?

Improving on a 14-2 season from a year ago will be difficult, but certainly not out of reach for women's tennis. Co-captain Tess MacDonald will be a force for the Tigers, along with Michelle Battat, Anne Helm, Annie Mullowney, Melissa Wong and Stephanie Wong. MacDonald said the team has a chance to win the States this year because they lost only one player from last year's team. Mullowney is a returning first-team league all-star, while Helm, MacDonald and Stephanie Wong are returning second-team league all-stars.

This year was a rebuilding year for the volleyball team who lost ten seniors after last season. Returning for the Tigers are John Lee and Dave Seferiadis, co-captains. The team needs key efforts from seniors who were on JV last year, including setters Tal Ranen, Fernando Smolka and Alan Tang, and hitter Jake Brill. Last year, the boys placed third in the Bay State League's Carey Division.

Keeping the Pace with High Expectations

Strong field events and disciplined running will hopefully guarantee our boys' outdoor track good performances this season. The team goals are to go 7-0 and to become the Bay State Conference champions. Leading the team are Aaron Birmbaum in the triple jump, Mark Blackeney in the high jump, Gabe Greenberg in hurdles and Shawn Herlehy in the 400. Mike Boucher, Max Goldberg, Tyler Newman and Dan Robb will buoy the team in distance.

The Student Voice

Volume 1, Issue 1 December 1, 1998

Working on an upcoming issue are Editor-in-Chief Kate Kronish and an editor, Miriam Grill-Abramowitz.

We created The Student Voice, an entirely student-run magazine, in order to provide Newton North with an outl for social opinion. We wanted to openly discuss and debate social and political issues that affect students on variety of different levels. The Student Voice has gained recognition from the school's Publication Committee an official Newton North Publication. This process was long and arduous but has ensured the continuation of Th Student Voice for many years to come. As The Student Voice grows and changes, we hope that it will continue raise important questions and cause students to explore and discuss exciting and controversial issues. Some issu already examined in The Student Voice have included: eating disorders and women's body image, racism Newton North, teacher testing, and global warming, as well as debates on affirmative action and the legalizati of drugs.

Student Forum for Political Advancemen

S.F.P.A.

The goal of the Student Forum for Political Advancement is to discuss alternative forms of government. We do this by reading books on various revolutionaries, which we then discuss at our meetings. At other meetings we attempt to apply the methods of the revolutionaries researched to modern-day America. Although we do not exist to incite revolution, we nevertheless fully support the cogitation of such action.

NNOW

The Newton North Organization for Women seeks to provide an environment where women feel comfortable to share experiences and problems and get advice, while promoting equality for all people. Many people have the notion that a feminist is a radical, man-hating bitch. We seek to combat this stereotype and show that a feminist is anyone who believes that women deserve the same rights as men. Through open discussion and activism, we hope to expand the Newton community's attitude toward feminism and the treatment of women. We strive to have fun while empowering women at the same time.

Pikachu is one of the many fascinating, furry creatures to come out of the anime culture.

Why not just indulge your passion for "cartoons" in private? The reason is that anime isn't just "cartoons." Anime is more like fantasy and/or science fiction, illustrated with outstanding animation. As the Anime Club, we watch anime in a relaxed, newbie-friendly environment and discuss each movie afterwards. We watch both mainstream anime and more off-beat pieces. The Anime Club also spreads the word about local anime events.

We hope to spread awareness of anime to those unfamiliar with this rich art form. Anyone is welcome to come watch some good movies and learn about the culture behind them.

The Newton North Mock Trial Team has a long and dynastic history and is now in its thirteenth year. "Though our last season was cut short, we hope to return this year with a more successful record," said Arianna Kelly. The wonderful, lovably-abrasive advisors are Elliott Loew, Esq., Patrick Hannon ('98), Eric Pettit ('93), and Don Crowley.

The team's season traditionally runs from October to (hopefully, knock on wood) May. The team competes in the annual Massachusetts Bar Institute's Mock Trial Tournament. consisting of three regional trials. This is followed by a single elimination tournament between the winners from each region. The cases are on a wide variety of issues, aimed at instructing students on various legal topics. This year the case dealt with the issuance of a restraining order. Students received the case before Thanksgiving and the first trial began near the end of February.

Fishing—

The Fishing Club, with over forty members, is a highly motivated group of fishermen, hunters, and sportsmen of all types, bound together by their love of the great outdoors. This year, the club took this love a step further by actively recruiting interested students and teaching them how to enjoy, appreciate, and protect the fisheries and forests of Massachusetts.

Despite an especially cold Autumn season, the club took to the water with a passion, going on several excursions around the Bay State. The year started with a bang when Ben "Bassmaster" Dower, co-president of the club, set a club record by reeling in a 13 inch largemouth bass. Dan Murnane, the other co-president and an expert with the fly rod, quickly followed suit, shortly catching a 15 inch trout. The club also participated in several projects aimed at preserving and keeping the state's waterways fishable for future generations.

Because the club has all necessary gear, all a prospective member has to do is to show up...no experience necessary! The more knowledgeable climbers teach the newcomers the intricate details of the sport, including climbing strategies and tips on how to belay. Other trips include climbing at Blue Hills, at Gloucester, and at Rumney, New Hampshire. The club atmosphere is warm and supportive, and the kids are some of the best in the school!

The veterans of the squad made it their business this year to keep up the group's reputation: both throughout our school and in the city of Boston. On the first March the squad stepped out to help raise money for Debbie Allen's Cancer Association in Atlanta, Georgia, where they stayed at the xurious Four Seasons Hotel. Alpha Pi Delta had its annual Step Show at North on May 20, 2000. In addition to the step squad, the oreography Club was established to further the stepping experience and to aid in upcoming shows. Alpha Pi Delta hopes that its stepping dition will continue to grow and develop.

Six thousand people from around the world came to participate in the last Head of the Charles Race of the millennium. North students rowed in two Youth 8' races. In the guy's boat pictured, Jeremy Alel is at stroke, position 8; Jess Feldon fills the 7 slot; Ian Mcguinnis is the 3 man; and Matt Croner is in the bow of the boat in the 1 spot.

Far more females than males fill the rosters of crew teams at C. Karen Alroy, Becca Freedman-Little, Rebecca Sauer and Jess Feldon make up the back row while Isabel Owen and Amy Squires stand in front.

Row, Row, Row, your boat.. FAST!

Our students join others from around the Boston area to participate in crew. The CRI (Community Rowing Incorporated) boathouse on the Charles River offers two rowing experiences: a development class meeting twice a week, and a competitive program meeting six days a week. The competitive crew team has traveled around the country winning many gold medals.

The Ultimate: Women & Frisbees

Who says girls can't play ultimate? This is the first year that girls got to huck, hammer, and airbounce on their own team. Senior captains Karen O'Connell and Leah Aronin worked hard to attract many new members. Practices were held once a week in preparation for the long-awaited tournament at Amherst in the spring. The team continues to uphold its history of success as well as its team spirit.

Karen Shilo releases a forehand into the wind at practice.

Jon Jay, Alex Rosenberg, Noah Ives, Ted Craddock, Bennet Schein, coach James Pitts, Dan Burkly, Ben Kwasnik, Jeremy O'Brien, Tom Burkly, Vadim Frishman, Mosche Rhodes, Andrew Koff, Jeremy Siegel, Steve Flusberg, and Adam Lunin.

Ted Craddock, Mosche Rhodes (28), Noah Ives (5), Alex Rosenberg, Dan Burkly, Adam Lunin, and Gabe Yospin rest between points.

Newton North's Ultimate Frisbee Program is one of the most competitive in the country. Since 1992, the team has competed in the best high school tournaments in the Northeast. Last Spring, the team, en route to a 19-4 record, placed third in a Philadelphia tournament and second in a tournament in Exeter, New Hampshire. At Nationals the Tigers advanced to the quarterfinals, where they fell to the eventual national champions, Nashville's Brutal Grassburn. Newton North was ranked fifth in the nation after the Spring 1999 season.

The class of 2000 has been one of the best classes of Ultimate players ever to graduate. Twenty players graduate this year between the A and B teams, including tri-captains Dan Burkly, Vadim Frishman, and Alex Rosenberg. "This group of seniors is comparable to the best group in the past, the class of 1997," coach James Pitts said. "But they've proven themselves as a team with the most skill, heart, and ability to win that we've ever had here at Newton North."

The goals for the Spring 2000 season may sound ambitious, but are realistic for a team that returned every player from the 1999-2000 season. "This group has never beaten Amherst Regional HS," Burkly said of the team's state rival. "I believe we can beat them, as well as win Nationals, and become the best high school team in the country."

In the fall, the team competed in tournaments in Philadelphia, at Newton South (where it went 10-0), and hosted its own tournament here.

Burkly, Frishman, Rosenberg, Jon Jay and Steve Flusberg plan to compete for spots on the U.S. National high school team. This team will play in Germany this summer against teams from all over the world.

Vadim Frishman is a little camera-shy.

Alex Rosenberg throws a forehand against Nashville.

Dan Burkly receives a pass upfield against Nashville last spring.

FATE
Fighting AIDS Through Education

The 1999-2000 FATE Squad

F.A.T.E., Fighting AIDS Through Education, aims to educate the Newton North community about the prevention of HIV and AIDS and to raise money for the AIDS Committee in Boston. Senior representatives, Rachel Brighton, Debbie Mendel, and Tovah Poster, organize Senior AIDS Day and fundraisers such as the AIDS Walk and the AIDS Dance-a-thon. Tovah Poster says, "What I find most meaningful about F.A.T.E. is when speakers come in on Senior AIDS Day and tell the class about living with and preventing AIDS. Hearing someone's story is more effective than any statistic." Members of F.A.T.E. attend workshops which educate them about the prevention of HIV and AIDS. Debbie Mendel believes, "It's not always glamorous when you're putting a condom on your finger in front of the entire senior class, but if it can educate one person in the audience then it is worth it."

Tovah Poster, Rachel Brighton, and Debbie Mendel smile at Club Day trying to get new members j and help them prepare for Senior AIDS Day.

The Gay Stright Alliance, with over 40 members this year, is the cool place to chill and be yourself, no matter who you are or might be. Spreading awareness about people of all kinds of sexual identity and orientation, they also coordinate events such as the annual To B GLAD (Transgender, Bisexual, Gay and Lesbian Awareness Day), They traditionally march in Massachusetts' Gay/Straight Youth Pride March in May. The club also has awesome Mixers with other local GSAs and react to specific incidents of intolerance. The main mission of the Gay Straight Allience is to make sure that everyone feels safe, comfortable and happy here at Newton North.

Russian Club

The Russian Club has been an important part of our large Russian community. It has been a place where Russian students come together to discuss important school issues, to deepen their knowledge of Russian culture and to just have fun. This year, the Russian Club went on a traditional Russian ski Trip to New Hampshire and had a wonderful time. Every Friday, when the weather is good, members of the Russian Club play soccer on the school's fields.

International Club

The International Club helps students from different backgrounds come together. By sharing experiences, they become more comfortable in their new surroundings. This year, among the more traditional events such as the Halloween party, annual soccer game and social events, the club also sponsered a new International Day and were joined by all of the school's various culture clubs.

Black Leadership Advisory Council

B.L.A.C. stands for Black Leadership Advisory Council. Our main focus for the 1999-2000 school year was to unite the Newton North community. Not only did we plan to promote unity within the school, but we also reached out to other communities in need. Two projects that helped us reach our goal were: our Holiday toy drive for Carnie Hospital in Dorchester and our ongoing penny drive, where students willingily emptied their pockets to benefit the Home for Little Wanderers.

Instead of a president this year, Candice Williamson, Jackie Harper, and Achantel Thornton shared the position as co-chairs.

Asian Culture Day

Friday, May 14, 1999. Signs on Main Street said, "Come see Randall [Yee] beat up Tom [Cheng] !" advertising the annual Asian Culture Day —except this Asian Culture Day was different. Sponsored by the Asian Culture Club (ACC), 1999's Asian Culture Day surprised Newton North with a new energy. The event was not confined to the Little Theatre as in previous years, instead, all events required the full capacity of the Lasker Auditorium. Events were not limited to the stereotypical martial arts, but involved a discussion-panel of Asian-American teachers from North who discussed sensitive racial issues. Students were treated to a broader experience of the traditional Asian culture with a performance of both the Chinese dulcimer, and a Chinese folk dance. Even the martial arts events did not settle for merely amusing the audience, bu educated it. The distinct principles behind each martial art, Karate, Tae Kwon Do, Shaolin Wushu, Yang Tai Chi and Lion-dancing, were emphasized in an attempt to break down the media-induced stereotype of bloody violence. The eagerness to share the Asian Culture spilled over when throughout Friday, Asian Pop music was played in the cafeteria and a movie, "The Great Wall" was shown on Main Street.

Julie Lim, Charlene Beh, Albert Cho, Virna Malalis, Asian-American faculty members formed a panel to discuss issues ranging from stereotyping to the joys of being part of two cultures.

Jackie Lee and Stephanie Tocci relax in the sun enjoying the "wonderland" of New York City.

The Italian Club is comprised of multi-ethnic students who have a common interest and core for the Italian language, culture and people. "We strive to help our Italian community as well as neighboring ones to make us a little better," says group advisor Maria Vallone. The club has an exuberant group of officers led by our president, Gabriella Gallinelli. In her second year in office, she is joined by Vice-president Nate Olbeter, Secretary Liz Turner and Treasurer Liz Beaton. Co-chairs on the social committee of the Italian Club are Rose DiSalvo and Jane Duket are joined by Kevin Durikas, Lisa Rametta, Astride Noel, Barrett Goldsmith, and Alison Villapiano. The co-advisor of the club this year is Ms. Nicole Bonasera.

The Italian Club does fund-raising to defray the cost of the annual trip to New York and to help students on the Italian Exchange. "We take great pride in our community service efforts in helping the mentally challenged, visiting the elderly at the Wellesley Rehab Center and aiding battered women and children," says Gallineli. This year's club's members number about 80 students, the largest in the history of the Italian Club. They plan to honor their seniors at a Spring Banquet while presenting the Kim Saia Scholarship in memory of this former member.

Italian Culture Club doesn't only reach out to the community. Liz Turner, Liz Beaton, Janine Gourdou, Jane Duket, Cupo and Alex Balio enjoy the life of leisure in a limo ride to the Empire State Building.

Prof. Bonasera, as "white trash," attends the annual Halloween party.

JUGGLING CLUB

Ever trip on a ball in the hall? That could have been because of a drop by one of the juggling club members practicing on Main Street! In its first year, the Juggling Club provided an environment for people of all skill levels to learn, to teach, and to have fun. We improved our juggling skills, learning moves like clawing, full shower, columns, around the back, crazy man and others. We have brought juggling and hacky sack back from their respective graves. Our members have more balls than most!

Alex Rosenberg will gladly tell anybody that he is the best juggler.

LATINO CULTURE CLUB

Ricky Martin and Jennifer Lopez...need we say more? Latin music and culture are hot in the new millennium. From Salsa to the Taco Bell Chihuahua, Latin is in! The good news is that the Latino Club isn't only for Latinos, it's for anyone who wants to learn about Latin culture and tradition. One of the club's endeavors this year was to raise money for flood victims in South America and other worthy causes.

I would just like to take a moment to thank all of my editors and those members of the Newton North faculty who helped to make this spectacular yearbook possible. I also owe a great deal of thanks to our advisor, Nan Feldon whose love, support, and dedication helped to make this book one of the best yearbooks in our school's history.

I thank you for giving me the opportunity to take this book from its very early stages of production to this final product. It has been a privilege and an honor to serve as the Editor-in-Chief of Newtonian 2000. I wish all of my fellow classmates success in the years to come.

Sincerely,

The fonts used in Newtonian 2000 included Pepita MT, Palatino, Impact, Times Roman, Bellot, Nuptial Script and Symbol. The book was printed by Jostens Publishing, 401 Science Park, P.O box 297, State College, PA, 16804-0291. 800 copies were published at an original selling price of $50. The programs used included: Aldus PageMaker 5.0, Microsoft Word v5.1, Adobe Photoshop v5.0, Claris FileMaker v3.0, Aldus FreeHand v7.0. We would like to thank John Neister, Eric Rodriguez, Terry and Jay Bleiler, Beverly and Kim from Purdy Vantine Photographers, Tom Youtosh, Jennifer Huntington, Peter Leofanti, Brenda Keegan, Bev Lim, Tom Donellan, Chris Murphy, Paul Shapiro and the Newton North Custodial Staff for their help and support. A special thank you to the Yearbook Fundamentals class who helped write captions and copy whenever needed. Thanks to the Newtonian 1959 Staff for the old photos and research.

CONGRATULATIONS LORI

You'll, when asked who's in charge
Of your life, say "I am."
And you are. Yes, you are.
You're officially a grown-up,
Which means you can still
Call for help when you're stuck.
You can count on good friends.
You can hope for good luck.
And you might cross your fingers.
You might say a prayer.
But it's you -- mostly you --
Who will get yourself where
You'll, sooner or later, decide
That you're trying to get.
Will you get there? You bet!
You're officially a grown-up.

You are such a joy to us! We have had so much pleasure watching you grow in so many ways. We treasure your clear, mellow voice and are so happy to have heard you sing at home all these years and in Concert Choir, Family Singers, Jubilee Singers, and musicals at NNHS. We are glad that you have found your place in the theater, whether on stage or behind. We are proud of your leadership, your patience, your sense of right and wrong, and your capacity to bring people together both inside and outside of school. Each day we experience your sensitivity, gentleness, thoughtfulness, and kindness. We delight in your love of history and your inquisitiveness about current events. We are happy that you have always been a kind a loyal friend. No son or brother could be more special. As you graduate from NNHS and head further down the path of life, we hope you find "The Rainbow Connection" in all the people you meet and the things you do. We know you will make a big difference in the world!

We love you! Mum, Dad, and Martha

DAVID

Why are there so many songs about rainbows,
And what's on the other side?
Rainbows are visions, but only illusions,
And rainbows have nothing to hide.
So we've been told, and some choose to believe it;
I know they're wrong, wait and see.
Someday we'll find it, the Rainbow Connection;

Who said that ev'ry wish would be heard and answered
When wished on the morning star?
Somebody thought of that, and someone believed it;
Look what it's done so far.
What's so amazing and keeps us stargazing
And what do we think we might see?
Someday we'll find it, the Rainbow Connection;
The lovers, the dreamers, and me.

All of us under the spell; we know it's probably magic

Have you been half asleep and have you heard voices?
I've heard them calling my name.
Is this the sweet sound that calls the young sailor?
The voice may be one and the same.
I've heard it too many times to ignore it.
It's something I'm s'posed to be.
Someday we'll find it, the Rainbow Connection;
The lovers, the dreamers, and me.

"No, we didn't have any pets on the farm," grandpa said as the woman stood on bread. They built great ships together, shared a birthday and a friendship of clashing clothes, puzzles, and ice cream; but actually I'm closer because if we were a triangle you would be the hypotenuse, and "no, we only had rabbits, a dog named Spot, 2 cats and oh, yeah, chickens, lots of chickens."

You hit the ground running and it hasn't changed. What fun it has been to trip over soccer balls and clothing, beg you to get off the phone, chauffeur you to the "other" side of Newton, and love you to pieces. Many things change, but the loving part never will. You entered a champion and you continue to be one in so many ways.

Matt,
Thru Preschool and High School, you've always been there.
With your smile, or a joke, or some trouble to share.
Now you've grown, oh so well, and await what life brings.
We want you to remember a few little things.

We'll love you always, wherever you roam.
We'll miss you dearly, so pick up the phone.

To our Leadership 2000 Graduates:

It is our hope that you leave from here with a new awareness of who you are and of what others can become to you.

"Amazing isn't it, how some people see the basket half empty and others see it half full. Some see life hopeless, others hopeful. Even when things are less than perfect, if you can think of the good, the beautiful, the hopeful, you'll be more than sustained. . . you'll conquer."

Good leaders inspire people to have confidence in them; Great leaders inspire them to have confidence in themselves.
We know you will become one of the great leaders!

In the Beginning: How far have we gone?

This year, Newton North commissioned artist Elli Crocker to replace the school mural which has graced the cafeteria wall since the 1930's; the new mural, the school told her, should reflect the changes to both the student population and the spirit of Newton North as it moves into a new millennium. Mrs. Crocker responded with a painting that truly captured the various aspects of the school. Her work shows how far we have come in our attempts to create a diverse community, and how far we have yet to go.

Contrasting the new mural with the old shows how many different kinds of students now attend Newton North, as well as our growing awareness of those groups. In the old mural, the artists made students appear unique by using different athletic uniforms, by choosing to make their hair either blonde or light brown, and by putting a drama mask or a chemistry beaker in their hands. In the new mural, our differences run deeper and are much more varied: students now define themselves by what friends they have; by how they choose to wear their hair and clothes; by skin color; by culture; by religion; by nationality; by sexual orientation; and by whether they paint, cook, teach, design, build, study or play here. Newton North has a wealth of personalities who all have the ability to teach each other about life. The All-School Assembly and Breaking Barriers Day represent our first attempts to acknowledge that fact.

The new mural also reveals, however, our reluctance to act on our perceptions. The individuals and groups in the mural seem not to notice each other; they are all separate in their own worlds, despite the fact that they share a space, a painting, a building. On Breaking Barriers Day, we criticized ourselves for that division and close-mindedness, but we are only just beginning to overcome it. Mrs. Crocker's mural, like Breaking Barriers Day, gives us an awareness of the problem: now we must find a solution to it. The Newton North community still ignores the efforts, achievements, or even the presence, of some students — not out of any malicious intent, but simply because it is easier, and perhaps more comfortable, to remain with one's own group. Whether we can begin to move forward together will depend on our ability to risk that comfort in order to experience something much more valuable.
